State Ethics Law Won't Be Slowed, McKeithen Says

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. John McKeithen said Friday the new Code of Ethics for elected state officials and state employees will go into effect without delay.

The law is scheduled to go into effect Monday. The Governor said he had been concerned that the recent legislature had failed to name two of the three-man board to regulate the code. However, McKeithen said he found a provision giving him power to make interim appointments if the legislature failed to make required appointments.

For that reason, McKeithen said "Our code will not be delayed." He said he would appoint all the members required on two new boards until the legislature acts.

The Code of Ethics, designed to prevent use of public office for private gain, was one of McKeithen's top campaign pledges.

FIRST SUCH CODE

National publicity touched his drive for image polishing, because the code was the first to cover elected state officials, although some states have codes affecting state employees.

The code spells out what constitutes unethical conduct, and sets up two boards or commissions to operate it, one for elected officials, the other for state employees.

The law called for a three-member Louisiana Board of Ethics for the elected officials, with one named by the House who is not a House member, one named by the Senate who is not a senator, and one named by the governor from the ranks of retired or former Supreme Court justices, appeal or District court judges.

The separate, five-member Louisiana Commission on Governmental Ethics, for state employees, would consist of:

One member selected by the Louisiana Civil Service Commission from its own ranks, four others selected by the governor representing labor, industry, the professions and agriculture.

To questions, McKeithen said he intended for the employees code to begin functioning.

The Civil Service Commission has its man ready, Commission Chairman E. B. Roberts, dean emeritus of the Louisiana State University college of education.

The civil service department is designated to handle staff work for both the commission and the board. Department members said the administration of the new code would start when all members have been appointed or selected.

Recess Talks

On Good Tone

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Steel contract negotiators recessed talks for the holidays Friday on a tone of optimism. They'll resume Jan. 5.

Both sides said the talks, which started Tuesday, have been fruitful and have been carried out in a friendly atmosphere.

"They've been extremely good discussions in good humor, mostly," said R. Conrad Cooper of U.S. Steel Corp., chief management negotiator.

David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union, agreed with Cooper. Both appeared at a news conference.

Cooper volunteered the remarks. They were perhaps the most optimistic statements made by either side at news conferences in the last two contract negotiations.

Asked to give the reason why the talks are going so well, Cooper replied: "There's been more freedom of exchange, a little better understanding, maybe."

McDonald attributed the cordial atmosphere to the work of the Human Relations Committee, a union-management group established after the bitter 1959 strike to explore mutual problems on a continuing basis.

White Officer Doesn't Find 16 Hostages

Congo Rescuers Report No Trace Of Missionaries

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Sixteen British, Belgian and American hostages of the rebels are missing from the northern Congo town of Banalia, a rescue column radioed Friday.

South African Maj. Michael Hoare, commander of Premier Moise Tshombe's white volunteers, sent word that his men found no trace of the group — 11 adults and five children — when they reached Banalia on Thursday.

FORCE OF 40

Banalia is 82 miles north of Stanleyville, the former rebel capital. It was Hoare's first objective in a planned sweep across the northern Congo to try to rescue white persons still in rebel hands. Hoare has about 40 tough soldiers with him.

Twelve of the hostages — 11 Britons and Miss Mary Baker, an American of Richmond, Va. — belong to the Protestant Un evangelized Fields Mission. There also were three Belgian Roman Catholic nuns and an aged Belgian priest at Banalia, according to earlier reports to the mission headquarters in Leopoldville. Church workers here said they had not given up hope of finding the group alive.

The last word of the missionaries was that they were living under house arrest in the doctors' quarters at Banalia Hospital. The reports dated from late November.

Congolese army headquarters in Leopoldville said fierce fighting continued at Paulis, capital of Uele Province in the far north. Rebels still hold the town's African quarter.

A column of 47 white troops and 200 Congolese soldiers knifed into Paulis last week. They have been reported under almost continuous rebel attack since the weekend.

Soldier Wants Out; Won't Eat Or Work

MANNHEIM, Germany (AP) — An American soldier went on a hunger strike 22 days ago to show his disdain for the Army, an Army spokesman said Friday.

Pvt. Scott Burchill, 23, of Reno, Nev., 1310 Trainer Way, told his commanding officer his strike against food is part of a personal philosophy that forbids him to have anything to do with the Army, in which he enlisted 15 months ago, even if he starves to death, the spokesman added.

It started last Nov. 27 when Burchill walked into his company commander's office with a four-page "manifesto" in which he said he rejected the Army.

The manifesto outlined Burchill's dissatisfaction with America's draft laws, as well as legislation covering conscientious objectors to military service. He said he believed such legislation failed to give adequate protection to persons who object to serving in the Army out of purely moral rather than religious reasons.

Since making his objections known, Burchill has not worn a uniform or attended formations willingly, saluted, said "sir," or eaten. His last meal was on Thanksgiving Day.

His commanding officer said he would have to be put into his uniform, but he took it off promptly and stood formation in underwear and socks.

When his company undertook a field problem, Burchill made a concession to the snow by slipping into long underwear but he still refused to eat or work.

Burchill, a former student at the University of Nevada, has sent copies of his manifesto to anyone he thinks might be sympathetic.

The Army spokesman said Burchill's battalion commander has recommended he be discharged.

"His physical condition is good — he hasn't passed out yet — and he won't touch anything more substantial than water," the spokesman added.

U.S. Will 'Plan In Earnest' To Replace Panama Canal

Historic Day For Panama, Leader Says

PANAMA (AP) — President Marco A. Robles called this "a historic day" for Panama when he reported to the people on President Johnson's offer Friday to renegotiate the Panama Canal treaty and also build a new canal in the region.

He said Johnson's statement "will create a favorable atmosphere for negotiations," but warned that during them Panama will make "basic demands" for changes.

"In his important statement, President Johnson has accepted the proposal to negotiate an entirely new treaty which would replace the 1903 accord, with its amendments," Robles declared. "This will integrally abrogate this accursed treaty."

"President Johnson also accepts that the new treaty to be negotiated will establish the recognition of Panamanian sovereignty over the Panama Canal and will put a halt to the odious policy of perpetuity which determines its (the treaty's) length," Robles said.

Then he added: "The abrogation of the 1903 treaty, explicit recognition of our sovereignty over the Canal Zone and abolition of the perpetuity (clause) are the three fundamental demands for which the Panamanian nation and its sons have fought for five generations."

Goodfellows Aid Fund Rises $388

An additional $388 in contributions to the Goodfellows Christmas fund for needy families of Ouachita Parish was received Friday, raising total collections to $4,518.50.

However, the organization is still $1,481.50 short of its goal of $6,000. The deadline for accepting contributions is Christmas Eve as the volunteers will deliver the parcels of food, clothing and toys at this time.

Workers from the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce and Jaycee Jaynes and the West Monroe Jaycees are busy now trying to investigate the large volume of letters which have been written to the Goodfellows asking for help. The families most in need of assistance will be helped.

The volunteers are also storing and sorting the donations of food, clothing and toys which are beginning to come in at their building at 2500 Lee Ave.

Among the letters which have come in was one which reads, "My father is unable to work and we are on disability under social security. There are four children in our family and we are all out of clothes. Please help if you can."

U.N. Extends Peace Force For Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — By unanimous vote the U.N. Security Council on Friday extended the life of the 6,200-man U.N. peacekeeping force on Cyprus for another three months, as recommended by Secretary-General U Thant.

None of the 11 council members objected to continuing the force until next March 26.

TURKS VS. GREEKS

But representatives of Cyprus, Greece and Turkey engaged in sharp debate, raking over the coals of controversy that have heated up Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communal rivalry since Cyprus became independent nearly five years ago.

The rivalry between the 420,000 Greek Cypriots and the 120,000 Turkish Cypriots raged into bloody fighting just before last Christmas. The United Nations got a declared cease-fire and last March established the military force supposed to patrol neutrality lines until a mediator appointed by Thant can get a political solution.

Thant reported to the council that the situation was fundamentally still dangerous, although the fighting had quieted down.

Alas, not I," the First Lady replied.

The Johnsons plan to be at their Texas ranch for Christmas.

They'll have a traditional holiday there, with Mrs. Johnson distributing small remembrances to neighbors and friends in the area on Christmas Day.

The Johnson family open their presents on Christmas Day. For dinner they'll have turkey with cornbread dressing and all the accompaniments, and ambrosia (oranges and coconut) for dessert.

The children had punch and cookies at their party and for entertainment there was a group of bell ringers. Each child also got a chocolate from Santa Claus.

The national Christmas tree is the gift of the people of New York State and came from the Adirondack Mountains.

It is 72 feet high and is decorated with 4,500 red lights and 500 twinkling white lights, along with hundreds of large golden balls.

LBJ Names Four Routes Under Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson made a surprise announcement Friday that the United States will "plan in earnest" to replace the Panama Canal with a sea level channel linking the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Johnson indicated also the United States might turn over control of the present Panama Canal Zone to the Panamanian government once a new canal is in operation.

The President read his policy-setting statement that came 11 months and nine days after the outbreak of Panama violence in which 20 were killed and 200 injured.

NEW TREATY

Johnson, noting that last January's violence was triggered by disputes over the Canal Zone treaty with Panama, announced the United States wants to negotiate "an entirely new treaty on the existing Panama Canal."

Any new agreement, he said, should terminate automatically "when a sea-level canal comes into operation." That presumably would mean termination of American control over the Canal Zone.

Johnson said there seem to be four possible routes for a new canal — two in Panama, one in Colombia and one through Nicaragua and perhaps, a corner of Costa Rica.

Johnson gave no cost estimates but experts estimated earlier this year that the price tag for a sea-level channel would range from $620 million for one of the Panama routes to $1.9 billion for the one through Nicaragua, providing nuclear explosives can be used for digging. Conventional explosives would be more costly.

Johnson gave no hint of when such a new canal might be completed but experts estimated the Panama Canal will be hopelessly jammed by 1980.

Johnson said, "Already more than 300 ships built or building are too big to go through with full loads."

Initial Panamanian reaction to the President's announcement was favorable. Humberto Calamari, one of Panama's representatives in post-rioting negotiations with the United States, said of the proposal for a new treaty, "This is exactly what we had been hoping for."

Calamari predicted Johnson's proposal would lead to improved relations between the two countries.

American government officials said disposition of the physical assets of the Panama Canal, once a replacement was in operation, would present a real problem. They said American interest in the old canal, dating back to 1903, would then "be reduced to a negligible point."

Johnson's two-part announcement was regarded as a package proposal, with negotiation of a new Panama Canal treaty contingent on plans for pushing ahead of a sea-level waterway.

The statement did not say whether the new channel would be financed and controlled exclusively by the United States and officials said Johnson deliberately did not want to foreclose any possibility, including a possible joint undertaking involving the United States and several other countries.

Britain Will Defer On Post-War Loans

LONDON (AP) — Financially pressed Britain has postponed payments of interest and principal on American and Canadian loans made after World War II. The action Friday is another step aimed at conserving this country's dwindling foreign exchange reserves.

The payments — of $138.1 million to the United States and $37.7 million to Canada — are due Dec. 31. They include interest and capital repayments on postwar reconstruction loans of $5.5 billion, a figure which also included the final windup of World War I lend-lease repayments.

Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan announced the deferment in a written reply in the House of Commons to a query from Laborite legislator Tom Dalyell.

"The government have decided to take advantage of the deferment provision in the financial agreements dated March 6, 1957, in respect of the 1964 instalments and have advised the two governments accordingly," Callaghan said.

This move followed the publication Wednesday of the nation's trade figures for November which showed a further increase in Britain's unfavorable balance of trade.

This difference between what the country spends and sells overseas rose $30.8 million to

Monroe Police Arrest Driver; Probe Accidents

James Culpepper, 38, of 2409 DeSiard, Monroe, was arrested at 9:55 p.m. Friday at 8th and Breard streets and booked for driving while intoxicated and reckless driving. His bond was set at $435.

Monroe police also reported two traffic accidents Friday evening involving minor injuries.

Betty L. Stokes, 33, of 409 McCain St., was shaken up as the result of a hit and run accident. According to police, she was driving east on Pine when a car going north on 11th St. ran a red light and pulled out in front of her, ran into her vehicle, and kept going.

Joyce H. Bassett, 2303 S. 6th St., was taken to her family physician with minor injuries received in an accident on Texas St. She was driving west on Texas when a car driven by Edward D. Van Etten, 31, of 302 Beasley St., struck her car from the rear. He was charged with having improper brakes.

JOSEPH O. HERPIN Jr. was installed Friday night as new president of the Harry M. Lemert High 12, as the organization combined installation with the annual Christmas party at the Rendezvous. Shown with Herpin, Dr. Dee A. Strickland, (left) a past state Grand Master, was installing officer and speaker. Other 1965 officers installed are Alva S. Huffman, first vice president; Arnold R. PNEUMONIA COULD RAISE TOLL

20 Elderly Patients Die As Blaze Destroys Home

FOUNTAIN TOWN, Ind. (AP) — Flames raced through a nursing home Friday, turning it into a crematory and killing 20 elderly patients, many of them feeble and bedridden.

The convalescent home had been pronounced perfectly safe by state inspectors only six months ago.

Fourteen patients and three nurses survived, but a physician expressed fears that pneumonia could add to the toll, officially fixed at 20 by state police.

The survivors, some of them barefoot, stood dazed in nightclothes in near-zero cold as the fire engulfed the 60-year-old former country mansion. Rescuers had to struggle to keep some bewildered patients from re-entering the flaming building.

A state fire official said a basement furnace apparently overheated and ignited a wall. The blaze leaped to the top of the two-story wooden structure in minutes.

The front wall of an enclosed porch was left standing, a silvery ice-encrusted plastic Christmas wreath hanging on the door. Behind it were only twisted, blackened ruins.

One nurse carried five women downstairs and led three men to safety from the first floor. Though groggy from the smoke, she refused hospitalization until she had helped doctors identify the diabetics and others needing special attention.

Dr. Lucian A. Arata, Shelby County coroner, said that when help arrived, "the fire was so intense that no rescue could even be attempted."

A volunteer fireman, Bob Reed, who was among the first on the scene, said "We heard screams, but we couldn't get to them. It was a regular inferno."

One of the patients, Harry Dennemann, 67, said, "the only thing I know I was lying in bed asleep and I woke up and my lungs were full of smoke. The whole room was just choked with smoke."

Dennemann groped his way outside, then started to return for his coat. A passing motorist restrained him.

"None of them wanted to come out," fireman Paul Whittington said. "It was just too cold."

The 34 patients at the McGraw Nursing Home on the outskirts of this central Indiana town of 290 persons, 25 miles southeast of Indianapolis, were housed in a 15-room mansion built at the turn of the century and converted into a private convalescent center in 1946. The owner, William L. McGraw, said the patients ranged in age from 65 to 86.

The blaze erupted in 4-above weather shortly after 2:30 a.m.

"The whole upstairs was on fire by the time our first truck arrived," the Fountain town volunteer fire chief, C. N. Jeffries, said.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Howard Boegaboltz quoted one of the three night nurses on duty, Frances Miles, 62, as saying the flames broke out at the baseboard level of a small first-floor utility closet near the stairwell.

Boegaboltz said records showed the home was last inspected June 15 and met all safety requirements.

Myrtle Donahue, 56, a nurse's aide who had worked at the home only three months, was credited with single-handedly rescuing eight of the 14 surviving patients. She carried five women to safety, then re-entered the home and led three men outside.

Taken to Major Hospital in the county seat of Shelbyville, she refused care until she had given as many details as possible to help treatment of the other survivors.

Dr. William L. Green said of the patients, "for their age, they're in reasonably good shape."

LONG PRISON TERMS

Protesting Suspects Avoid Chair For Plotting To Spy

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — An American engineer and a Russian chauffeur, stoutly maintaining their innocence, escaped the death penalty Friday but received long prison sentences on charges of plotting to spy for the Soviet Union.

John W. Butenko, 39, an electronics engineer from Orange, was given 30 years imprisonment on the charge, and two concurrent five-year terms on lesser charges.

"I know I am innocent," Butenko told the court before sentence was pronounced. "I have done nothing to harm the security of the country. I just want to ask the court for mercy and clemency. I hope that someday time will vindicate me."

The Russian, Igor A. Ivanov, 34, drew a 20-year prison term on the espionage conspiracy charge and a five-year concurrent sentence on another count.

Speaking through an interpreter, a sentence at a time, the blond, athletic-looking Ivanov told the court: "I came to this country to work as a chauffeur and I worked here only as a chauffeur. During my stay in the United States, including up to today, I did not come to break any laws. I consider my arrest an unfortunate misunderstanding. I fully and completely reject the indictment in this case. I am not guilty."

Ivanov's attorney, Samuel A. Lerner, filed notice of appeal with the federal court clerk's office shortly after the sentencing. An aide to Butenko's lawyer, Raymond Brown, said he would file similar notice Monday.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Anthony T. Augelli, who presided at the eight-week trial that ended Dec. 2, pronounced the sentences.

Butenko has been held without bail since his arrest in an Englewood railroad station Oct. 29, 1963. Ivanov, arrested there too, had been free on $100,000 bail posted by the Soviet Embassy.

Bail was revoked and both men were taken to Hudson County Jail.

The government accused Butenko and Ivanov of conspiring to transmit U.S. Air Force secrets to the Soviet Union. They also were convicted of conspiring to violate the law requiring registration of foreign agents, and Butenko was found guilty on a third count, acting as an unregistered agent of the Soviet Union. Butenko was employed by a division of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. in Parmus, and worked on defense contracts. Ivanov worked for the Soviet trade agency Amtorg in New York.

Defense Chief's 'Defiance'

Without attempting to analyze or determine whether the plan of Robert S. McNamara, secretary of defense, to merge the Army Reserve into the National Guard would be a good or detrimental move, it is easy to see that United States Representative F. Edward Hebert, D., La., is right in his loud protest against McNamara's high-handed action.

Some news commentators have speculated that McNamara may return to private life soon after President Johnson takes the oath in January as the newly-elected President. If so, his action, aimed at upsetting the established system of a large part of our military establishment is untimely and ill-advised.

Hebert, in an apparently fully-justified move, declared war on McNamara's scheme to merge the two branches of the nation's reserve military forces. He asserted McNamara violated the spirit of the law which says there must be an Army Reserve. He also accused the defense secretary of trying to "butter up" the National Guard by offering filled units and more equipment.

Hebert said McNamara took the action without consulting with Congress, the Army Reserve policy committee or military advisors. If so, this was in typical McNamara style. McNamara, some time ago, was verbally castigated by Congressman Otto E. Passman of Monroe for his high-handed methods. He has been pictured as thinking Congress is a "necessary evil."

In regard to this, Hebert said: "McNamara does not think Congress is a necessary evil. He thinks it is an unnecessary evil."

The defense chief's plan to place the Reserve under the Guard drew loud protests from the Reserve Officers Association, which has asked President Johnson to block the proposal.

In some respects, McNamara and Johnson are similar. Neither wants to accede in any degree to the will of any man. McNamara has been pictured as being fully determined to run the defense department in his own way, without any direction or advice from the President, Congress or the military chiefs of staff. It could be that what some refer to as his "bull-headedness" might lead to his resignation after Johnson's inauguration. This would be virtually certain to happen if he and Johnson had strong differences of opinion. Many throughout the country think this would be the best thing that could happen from a military point of view, since it seems entirely unlikely that one civilian knows more about military safety than all of the top military men of the country combined.

Hebert said McNamara ignored the law saying there must be an army reserve, and added: "Secretary McNamara, in his assumed omnipotence, defies the law, if not the letter, mostly certainly in the spirit. Secretary McNamara's cavalier attitude toward these men and women is typical of his 'Congress-be-damned' attitude."

With apparent justification and good reason, Hebert said McNamara's proposal was another in a continuing series of acts which tend to undermine the structure of the government. "There is no place in the United States for a dictatorial oligarchy or individual, particularly in the defense department," he said.

McNamara's contention that his proposed plan will save money was also attacked by Hebert when he said: "The statement by Secretary McNamara that this plan will 'save' $150 million is like so many other statements which he makes about 'savings' but which, in reality, are about as phony as a three-dollar bill."

There have been frequent charges that McNamara's so-called economies in the defense department, which some believe have already damaged our defense potential, have been more than offset by other unnecessary expenditures, including the awarding of a plane contract to a high bidder, at many additional millions, instead of to a low bidder, who, some military men testified, actually had a better type of plane.

Hebert's statement that, "There is no place in the United States for a dictatorial oligarchy or individual," is particularly timely in view of a disclosure made by Washington correspondents Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott that President Johnson has authorized the secret police to investigate any firm or any individual which might do anything calculated to "embarrass" him.

Of course, Johnson could be "embarrassed," if he chose, any time anyone opposed him or objected to his policies. If the President has any idea of placing himself beyond criticism he is surely entering the dictatorial position of men such as the late Adolf Hitler of Germany. It is to be hoped he has no such intention, for, if he has and it can be carried out, the heading on such a story could well read, "The Fall of a Democracy."

There can be no doubt about McNamara's dictatorial aspirations. They have been so brazen that some Congressmen have been dumbfounded or aroused to anger. Luckily, there is no likelihood that McNamara will ever be President. Johnson also saw to that by refusing to name McNamara as his vice-presidential running mate, as he had refused to name Robert Kennedy, on the reported assertion that he did not want to risk the fate of the country in Kennedy's hands.

Since McNamara is trying to tell Johnson, the commander-in-chief of the armed forces, in no uncertain terms, what to do, the President should scan critically any proposal made by the defense secretary and should weigh it and test it in the light of military recommendations and his own judgment. The safety of our nation demands that.

Jobs And Unemployed

Facts developed by some welfare officials seem to confirm the suspicion formerly held by some that the forced creation of jobs in many cases is merely the creation of job vacancies.

Much the same situation is probably true throughout the country. In Westchester County, New York, Louis P. Kurtis, welfare commissioner, has added some information that helps explain the paradox of people who can't find jobs and employers who can't find workers.

Kurtis announced the result of a survey that shows that 75 percent of those on relief in this county are emotionally unfit to earn a living — and the survey covered 5,600 persons. Included were a large number of alcoholics, mentally ill, retarded, addicted and even persons with criminal records, who can be helped neither by mere creation of jobs nor by the "re-training" approach.

The survey indicates that in a large percentage of the cases these persons should be listed as "unemployables" and not as unemployed. The Democratic administration's so-called "poverty" program can do little for those in the classes shown above and it was not expected it would. From the beginning, it has been and is largely a political propaganda proposition.

Whatever the government does or does not do is not likely to help these people much in the foreseeable future.

In many instances, however, their cases are far from hopeless but it will take more than the mere offering of jobs to do them any good. What is needed in such situations is individual attention to individual problems. This is the kind of help that only other individuals and communities can provide.

Alcoholics, the mentally ill, and addicts all can be, and many have been, rehabilitated. The retarded can perform some kinds of jobs but seldom have the initiative to prepare or hunt for them. There are organizations which specialize in getting breaks for the freed criminal.

More rehabilitation and more ability might solve the problem of excessive unemployment.

Johnson Opposing Ouster

Asks Leniency For Williams, Watson

PRESIDENT JOHNSON is at odds with House Democratic leaders over what should be done with two Southern Democrats who supported Senator Barry Goldwater in the November election.

While the President is counseling against excommunication, his legislative chiefs, led by Speaker John McCormack, Mass., are privately advocating that Representatives John Bell Williams, Miss., and Albert Watson, S. C., be stripped of their party status and committee assignments.

To the legislators' chagrin, the President wants only to serve a "slap-on-the-wrist" warning to the two bolters that a second offense will result in their ouster from the party.

In conversations with the House leaders, the President is stressing that stronger discipline might touch off a party-shattering fight at a time he is seeking congressional unity for his "Great Society" programs.

"If the 'Great Society' is going to get off the ground in 1965, we will need all the votes you can muster to whip the legislative program through Congress in the first 90 days," explained the President. "A party fight at the opening of Congress could delay that timetable and the whole program. Once our election mandate cools off, it could take years to get the more controversial proposals on education and disarmament enacted into law."

TALKING IT OVER — Although agreeing that a party battle could seriously hinder swift passage of his legislative program, the House leader frankly told the President a clash is inevitable regardless of what stand they or the White House take.

"A showdown is coming on Representatives Williams and Watson no matter what positions we take," Majority Leader Carl Albert, Okla., reported. "Members of the House Study Group are going to see to that. Those liberal members want the two legislators purged and are planning a fight when Congress convenes."

When the President insisted a party fight be avoided for the sake of unity, Speaker McCormack replied:

"While I don't plan to go around in public beating my breast for their ouster, I am not going to oppose it. If you want party discipline in the House, these legislators must be punished. Otherwise, there is no party control. I personally favor the purge."

The House leaders, ever jealous of their prerogatives in dealing with other members, wound up their talks with the President by promising only to consult with him before any disciplinary action was voted against the Southern legislators.

MEANWHILE, members of the House Study Group, comprising 160 liberal Democrats, have begun setting the stage for the attempted purge of Representatives Williams and Watson.

Under the signature of Representative Frank Thompson, N. J., a leader of the Study Group, a memorandum is being circulated among all House Democrats containing excerpts of letters from Democrats, including Southerners, urging expulsion of the two Southern legislators.

A copy of the Thompson memorandum also was sent the President. So far, there has been no reaction.

Neither Williams, chairman of the House Transportation Subcommittee, nor Watson, member of the Civil Service & Post Office Committee, is showing any concern over the coming showdown.

Friends of the lawmakers report that stripping them of their party credentials in Congress would make them leading candidates for governor in their home states should they choose to seek that office in 1966.

OTEPKA CASE — The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee is giving President Johnson what he wants for Christmas.

On urgent request from the White House, the Senate probers are delaying until after the President's inauguration publication of more than 10,000 pages of secret testimony on security risks in the State Department.

One of the most sensational disclosures in these unpublished committee hearings is a list of 163 State Department security risks, 15 with the rank of ambassador or higher.

This highly explosive testimony, which may never see the light of day, is under lock and key in the subcommittee's vault and was to be released this month.

However, Senator Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., who blocked publication of the shocking testimony during the presidential campaign, again interceded to delay its release.

Bringing the White House request to the attention of other committeemen, Dodd won their reluctant approval to hold up publication to avoid embarrassing the President before his inauguration.

Senator Dodd, eager for an appointment to the Supreme Court, argued the President was planning to name a new Secretary of State after the inauguration and that release of the testimony should be delayed until then.

The subcommittee's unannounced action also has affected the State Department's long-pending case against Otto Otepka, a veteran security officer who incurred the ire of superiors by giving embarrassing information to congressional investigators.

The hearing on the charges against him once more has been postponed; this time until February, or several weeks after the inauguration.

Our Constitution Held Unswerving

THE COMINGS AND goings in Mississippi, the jailings and un-jailings of the 21 men accused in effect of killing the three civil rights workers show the strengths and the weaknesses of our judicial system. On the one hand there is due process, and due process is a venerable thing, all right. But on the other hand there is justice. And it is hard to conclude otherwise than that there is no justice in Mississippi, or precious little of it, when white people persecute black people. I grant immediately that the charges against Mississippi are almost surely overdrawn, that when they are uttered they sometimes have a ring of genocidal fanaticism to them — I recently heard a sophisticated man say that life in Mississippi is no better for the average Negro than life is for the average Yugoslav or Pole. But shrink the charges down, and you still have left over a despicable record of indifference to crime and humiliation.

Mr. Byron Beckwith was tried in Mississippi for the murder of Medgar Evers. Permit me to break from the ritualism — I know, I know, no man is "guilty" unless he is so found by a jury of his peers — and state that on the basis of what knowledge is publicly available of the painstaking case developed by the FBI against Beckwith, I believe that beyond a reasonable doubt the prosecution correctly charged him with killing Medgar Evers. But the trouble is, Beckwith was tried precisely by a jury of his peers; and for that reason he has twice now got off — thanks to hung juries. There are jurors in the South who do not recognize that a crime against a Negro falls under the generic category of "crimes." For them, it is an offense to be waived as, say, juries tend to waive the charge against the husband who comes home and shoots the man he finds in bed with his wife.

BUT WHAT IS to be done about it? Are we going to change the Constitution? Many liberals are raring to go. Yet we are dealing with the same Constitution, with the same guarantees of due process, that the entire Liberal community enthralls over when it results in the release of Communists (Judy Coplon — remember? — was just as guilty of her crime as Beckwith is of his); and Earl Warren became even more of a hero when he defended — or, some say, invented — the rights of the rapist Mallory in a famous decision which let him off, scot-free, to rape again.

And now the FBI has developed a case against 21 people, no less, who are allegedly guilty of torturing and killing three men associated with the civil rights movement in Mississippi. The Justice Department tried an end run around the local officials, so that instead of charging the gentlemen with murder — which federals have no right to do, that being Mississippi's business — the prosecution charged them with conspiracy to deprive people of their rights, in this case the right of the three civil rights workers to agitate as they please.

A LOCAL OFFICIAL, a Mississippi commissioner, having first executed a warrant for the arrest of the 21, promptly reversed herself on the grounds that the evidence against them was "hearsay," having been presented by an FBI agent who swears he got it from someone who is willing in due course to testify in court. But hark, even if in due course the 21 are arrested, indicted, and convicted, the penalties for violation of the laws in question would be trivial — a few years in jail.

Who will be the first to step forward and suggest that the Constitution be altered? And how precisely would we alter it? What about the proposal kicking around the left jet set, to send federal troops to Mississippi on the grounds that the state is in effect in a state of rebellion against the republican government which the federal government supposedly guarantees to all its citizens? The concept is awful in its implications, especially for those who deeply trust the state's assumption of any great power, let alone counter-revolutionary powers to punish whole peoples.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Time On 35 Miles Is Changed Often

IT'S NOT MUCH of a bus ride from Steubenville, Ohio to Moundsville, West Virginia, but one of the difficulties of traveling the route has added a new problem to the complex Congressional schedule for 1965.

On the winding, 35-mile trip between the two towns, a passenger who wants to keep his watch accurately set must change it seven times to keep track of the variations in local times.

A commuter who lives in one of the far suburbs of Washington, D.C., has no choice but to keep two clocks in his house in the summer. One tells him when to leave for the office and the other — set an hour later — tells his children when to go to school or the movies.

While most people survive the patchwork of time changes — at their worst when Daylight Saving Time is in effect on a local-option basis — some large corporations pay heavily. The railroads claim the loss $1 million a year printing time tables giving local equivalents for their schedules, even though the conductor's watches never swerve from standard time.

AIRLINES AND BUS companies print dozens of unnecessary time tables each year just to keep track of time changes in different cities they serve, even though the arrival and departure schedules are really unchanged.

Seeing no hope for clarifying the confusion at the local level, transport companies and many other groups have turned to Congress in hopes of obtaining a statute to simplify America's time once and for all.

Hearing the voice of the people — at least the puzzled folk — Congress has begun looking into the problem. It is finding that most of the solutions create even worse problems.

The solution is superficially simple: Just draw four permanent time zones and stick to them. No hanky panky about daylight saving time.

That is what was done in 1918. As a wartime measure, Congress adopted the program the railroads have been advocating for years. The four time zones were created, their borders running north and south approximately at intervals of 15 degrees of longitude. (It takes the sun exactly one hour to move 15 degrees from east to west.)

The lines, however, frequently did not coincide with state boundaries. Twelve states, including Texas, Tennessee and Kansas lie in two different zones.

Then came daylight saving time, a city idea often deeply resented by rural areas. Only during World War II was it possible to impose a nationwide system of daylight saving. The rest of the time it has been on a hit or miss basis.

OF THE 50 STATES, 28 states (Plus the District of Columbia) observe daylight saving time somewhere within their borders. Only 16 of these, however, observe it on a State-wide basis. In the other 12, it's a matter of which cities, towns or counties want to set their clocks ahead. In some States only one or two cities convert to daylight time. In other, only one or two counties remain on standard time.

While the bus lines are scratching their heads over this problem, they face another complication in the tendency of local communities to pick their own days for switching their clocks. Thirteen states have daylight saving time from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October. The other 15 begin or end "fast" time on some other dates.

This type of variation is responsible for the surprise many airline passengers feel on discovering they're going to land at a fairly distant airport several minutes before they take off — according to the schedules.

Struggling with the problem, the House Interstate Commerce Committee held hearings on several proposed solutions last summer. There were objections to all of them.

The plan to abolish daylight time altogether runs up against the backyard barbecue addicts and other city dwellers who appreciate an extra hour of summer daylight after they get home.

ANOTHER PLAN CALLS for imposition of new, rigidly drawn time zone boundaries to replace the present ones which meander down the map. Unfortunately, this would mean that time changes would occur in the middle of cities—sometimes in the middle of buildings.

Altering the time boundaries appears to require accommodation of local interests, so some of the bills considered by the committee turned to that old standby for such procedures — establishment of a commission which would set down binding time standards after hearing sentiments of all those affected.

WORKING LUNCH TODAY

Sec. Rusk Attends Gromyko's Party

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk went to a party given by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on Friday night in an informal prelude to serious discussions of East-West conflicts.

The two plan a working luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel today where tough questions — and especially the U. S. demand that Moscow pay its U.N. bills — are expected to dominate the conversation.

They began the talks at the time the U.N. General Assembly opened early this month.

Rusk was in New York two weeks, off and on, before he went to Paris and Atlantic alliance talks. He had three meetings with Gromyko on the U.N. financial crisis, disarmament, European security, South Viet Nam and other issues.

U.S. sources said Rusk told Gromyko then that serious talks on trade and other issues affecting the two countries could not take place until after settlement of the Soviet debt, now totalling $52.6 million, for peacekeeping operations in the Congo and Mideast.

The Russians maintain that the assessments are illegal. The United States has called for stripping the Soviet Union of its General Assembly vote unless they pay up, a procedure called for under U.N. Charter Article 19 concerning any member two years in arrears on its dues.

Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana, president of the General Assembly, was reported promoting a resolution to settle the dispute.

Jes' Ramblin'

Coed Garb

There's a simple explanation for the seemingly remarkable preponderance of male students at Northeast Louisiana State College — some of those pants-clad figures moving around campus are actually women.

But perhaps that's not such a simple explanation after all. There's more.

What happened was that, in view of the sudden snap of raw weather, Miss Alma Lufey, counselor to women students, made a special dispensation Thursday night permitting them to wear such garb to classes.

Holiday-ish

The Yule season probably really began to seem holiday-ish Friday night for West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris.

There were two excellent reasons — their names being Martha and James, the mayor's daughter and son.

Martha was due in by plane from Ithaca, N.Y., where she holds a teaching assistantship as she works for her master's degree. James, a junior, was home for the holidays from Louisiana Tech.

THREE YEARS OLD

May Be Child's Last Christmas

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Last year, The Associated Press learned of the sad Christmas the John Lietz family expected. The resulting dispatch prompted hundreds of persons to write the Lietz concerning their doomed children, who were suffering from an incurable disease. The baby boy has since died.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — There will be no sleds, snowsuits or tricycles under the Christmas tree this year for Susan Marie Lietz.

Unlike most children her age, the 3-year-old blond couldn't begin to handle a tricycle. And sleds or snowsuits are out of the question because she must be protected from any but the most moderate temperatures.

Susan suffers from Nieman-Pick disease, a rare malady that causes steady — and, eventually, fatal — degeneration of the nervous system.

The Christmas season has become a bittersweet time for the John Lietz family in suburban Berkeley. Last year, presents for two children were under the tree — for Susan and Kevin. But Kevin died before he was 4, a victim of the same ailment.

"I suppose we've wound up spoiling them a little — particularly near the end," Mrs. Lietz said quietly.

Last year at this time, Susan could walk, although she stumbled and fell a lot. Now she is confined to either a reclining easy chair or her bed. She recognizes only her parents, Mrs. Lietz' sister, and a baby sitter.

"She still likes to watch television," Mrs. Lietz said. "She'll watch anything that has children in it. And she loves to listen to music."

Mrs. Lietz and her husband, an aircraft corporation draftsman, have received letters offering hopes, prayers — even money — from nearly every state and from Canada.

"The AP story last Christmas caused hundreds of persons to write us," Mrs. Lietz said. "Some offered sympathy, others their prayers, still others sent money. We contributed the money to an organization doing research on a possible cure for Nieman-Pick disease."

Nieman-Pick is one of 16 similar diseases, all of which are extremely rare.

This group of diseases is hereditary. First noticeable when an afflicted child is from 6 to 18 months old, the diseases almost always result in death before the child is 4.

Susan Lietz was 3 in November.

"We tried to treat Kevin and Susan like any other children," Mrs. Lietz said. "If they needed a little spanking, we gave it to them. A spoiled child tends to weep and we always wanted to keep Susan and Kevin as cheerful as we could."

The Lietz' realize Susan likely will not be with them next Christmas. They have no other children.

"But we're determined to have children," Mrs. Lietz said. "We're going to adopt at least one. In fact, we almost had a little girl but it turned out she had a heart defect, and I guess they didn't want us to have to worry about another ill child."

Mrs. Lietz, a slim and attractive woman, added: "Caring for these children in spite of all was, in a way, more rewarding than in raising normal children — even though you know the inevitable will occur."

Personal Income Reaches Record High Last Month

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson announced Friday that personal income rose $3.3 billion in November to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $502 billion. He said this is "an historic milestone in the economic progress of the United States."

This was the first time personal income had crossed the $500-billion mark on an annual basis.

"This is a tremendous achievement for the American people and for our free enterprise system," Johnson said in a statement.

"Never before in our history or in the history of any other country has there been such an outpouring of the means to buy the good things of life. And never before have so many people shared in this wealth," he said.

Personal income includes all payments to individuals, including salaries and wages, dividends and interest.

Johnson said most of the November rise in personal incomes was in private wages and salaries which reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $340 billion. This represents a 25 per cent increase over the 1960 level for wages and salaries and for total personal income.

"While we still face the challenge of eliminating poverty from our society, this great income gain in the last four years clearly demonstrates that we have the means to achieve a decent standard of living for all Americans," Johnson said.

"It shows what American business, labor, agriculture and the government can accomplish by working together for the common good."

SANTA and the SINGING TURTLE

By LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: George, clutching Womp's nose so hard he dislocates his own jaw and cannot speak or sing. Santa agrees to let Womp play his flute. George is unable to warn Santa of Womp's plan to put the whole of Fairland to sleep.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

GEORGE TALKS

SANTA CLAUS led the fairies and the pixies and Storybook folk and all the visitors from the Animal Kingdom into the Fair Queen's palace for lunch.

They were as hungry as any creatures would be who had sung and danced all morning. They gobbled up the clover salad, the corn and mushroom and pineapple sandwiches, the pecan pudding and peanut butter ice cream. Between courses they talked over the morning's performances and argued about who was best.

Only two were quiet at the feast. One was Womp, the man-witch, who sat alone at a corner table nursing his bruised nose while he planned the tune he would play on his flute in the afternoon.

The other quiet one was Santa Claus. He toyed with his food and could not make any conversation at all. He was troubled. He felt in his bones that something was wrong. "What was it," he wondered, "that George wanted to say?"

Meanwhile, George himself was not at the feast. He was in the garden and the Snowman was working desperately to reset his dislocated jaw.

"Just suppose that Womp won first prize. Imagine him as Grand Musician to the Queen! It wouldn't do at all. Oh, George, whatever made you get yourself into such a fix?" "Ahhhhh," groaned George. He shook his head violently, but he could not shake his jaws back into place.

"If you had hiccoughs I would know what to do," said the Snowman. "You could sniff pepper and you would sneeze and the hiccoughs would be gone."

"Ahhhhh," said George. "Say," said the Snowman. "We might try that anyway!"

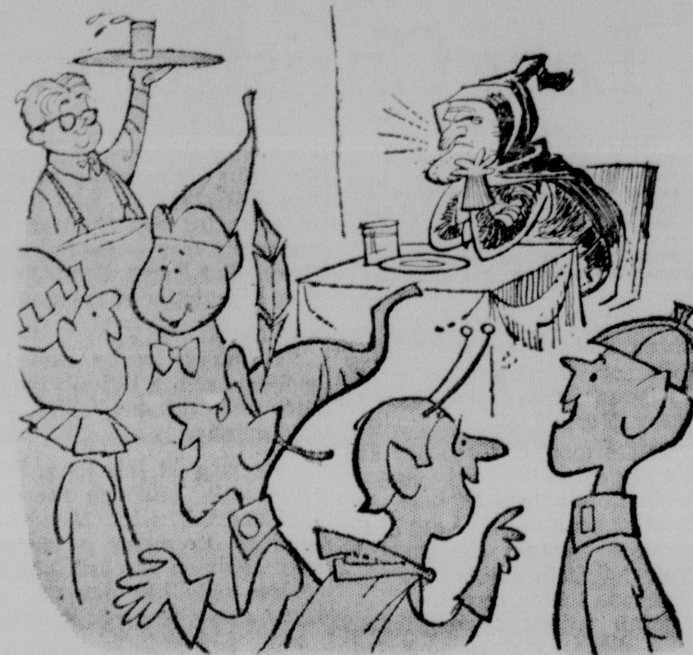

Before George could groan again the Snowman dashed away to the dining room and snatched a pepper shaker right from under the nose of Womp, the man-witch. When he ran back out Womp got up and followed.

"I bet this works!" cried the Snowman, running back to the turtle with the pepper shaker in his hands. George looked up and saw Womp behind the Snowman. He arched out his head and poked at the man-witch's feet crying "Ahhhhh!" The Snowman looked at Womp and he looked at Womp's feet and he saw at last what George had been trying so long to tell him.

"The Prince's shoes!" he cried. "Why he has on the Prince's shoes!"

He was so surprised he dropped the pepper shaker. It crashed on George's back, spraying pepper over George's head.

"Kerchew!" went George. And so violent was the sneeze his jaw sprang back into place! "Warn Santa!" he gasped as soon as he could speak. "He bewitched the Prince and he plans to bewitch Santa, too!" "Good gracious!" gasped the

The man-witch sat alone at a corner table.

Snowman, too astonished to move. George rushed off towards the palace but though his feet were running he wasn't getting anywhere. Womp had leaned down and picked him up by the tail.

"I arrived just in time," said Womp. "It is fortunate I had finished my lunch. Now it is my turn to tweak noses." He reached out and grabbed the dumbfounded Snowman. Then he marched off into the woods carrying George upside down by the tail and leading the Snowman by his carrot nose.

Greenhouse

Aids Research At Area College

RUSTON (Special) — Student projects and faculty research in the botany department of Louisiana Tech are being aided by the recently completed greenhouse located behind Carson-Taylor Hall.

The greenhouse is constructed of wood and mylar plastic, which is more durable than glass, and should last several years, it was pointed out.

It is presently being used by Dr. Robert Kral, assistant professor of botany. His research concerns the isolation and identification of various members of plant colonies first introduced into this country when rice was imported. The determination of the origin of these plants and their genetic make-up is part of the work being carried on by Dr. Kral.

The greenhouse enables the researcher to study many plants from various parts of the country all year and will later be used for student projects and other faculty research, Dr. Kral said.

Little Theatre's Christmas Play Schedule Reset

Revision of Little Theatre performance schedules for its annual Christmas play, "Green-sleeves' Magic," was announced Friday by Lonny Frazee, executive director.

Four matinees will be presented on Dec. 27-30, beginning at 2:30 p.m. Punch and cookies will be served at intermission, Frazee said.

Advance tickets are now on sale at the box office at $1 for adults and 75 cents for children. There will be no reserved seats, and tickets will be sold only to the capacity of the auditorium. Tryouts for this year's musical, "The Sound of Music," will be held in two categories—children and adults.

Girls from seven to 18 and boys from seven to 14 will try-out at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 3, and at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 4. The play calls for seven children who can sing well in parts. Adult parts will be read at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 3, and at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 5. Twenty women and 10 men are needed for singing parts. The major women's roles are for two sopranos and one contralto.

Judge Handles Several Cases In City Court

A number of traffic and other cases were disposed of Friday in Monroe City Court, presided over by Judge W. M. Harper.

A fine of $450 and costs was assessed against Jean R. Inzina, 30, of 811 S. 4th St., on three charges — driving while intoxicated, expired driver's license and reckless driving.

Ed Drummer Sr., 59, of 3906 Church St., was fined $30 and sentenced to 30 days in jail each on two counts — drunk and disturbing the peace and carrying a concealed weapon.

A fine of $10 and costs was imposed upon William Pergross, 20, of 1803 Bayou St. for simple battery.

Traffic violation cases heard included 17 improper parking, nine reckless driving, seven running stop signs and red lights, three failure to yield right-of-way, two each no driver's license, and following too closely and one speeding.

BAPTIST MISSIONARY, CHOOSES A 1965 FORD PICKUP FROM RIVERS FORD TO DRIVE BACK TO GUATEMALA!

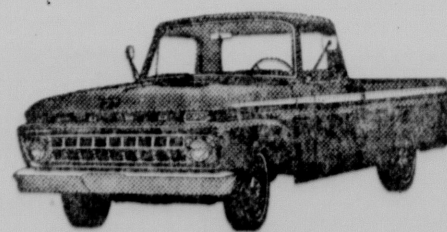

Rev. Cadwallader, former pastor of College Place Baptist Church, who is shown above receiving keys to his '65 Ford Pickup from Rivers Ford salesman, Percy Golson, will drive his new truck over the more than 3,000 mile route from here to Guatemala. Raising money for the purchase of this specially equipped vehicle was a project of the Brotherhood of College Place Baptist Church where Rev. T. Earl Ogg now serves as pastor. This equipment will be used by Rev. Cadwallader in his missionary work throughout Guatemala where he serves under the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. A strong factor which influenced the purchase of a Ford Pickup was, in addition to its roominess and load space, was the "like passenger car comfort" which Ford's new Twin I-Beam Front Axle provides. It was also pointed out that parts and service for Fords are available anywhere including Guatemala.

Here's why the '65 Ford Pick-Up gives "like passenger car" comfort.

AGAINST U.S. ATTORNEY

Appeals Judges Disagree On Mississippi Charges

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Several judges of a Federal Appeals Court indicated disagreement Friday with a Mississippi federal judge's contempt order against a U.S. attorney in an unusual outgrowth of civil rights litigation.

No immediate decision was handed down by the appellate court.

The importance of the judicial-executive dispute was underscored, however, by the fact that all seven active members of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals were called to consider the case.

At issue was U.S. Dist. Judge W. Harold Cox's contempt ruling against U.S. Atty. Robert E. Hauberg of Jackson, Miss. Cox held Hauberg in contempt Oct. 22 after the attorney, on orders of the Justice Department, refused to prepare and sign grand jury indictments of two Negroes on perjury charges.

"What right does the judge have to say to the U.S. attorney, 'Sign this indictment?' asked Judge Griffin Bell of Atlanta during argument by an attorney representing Cox.

"What right does the judge have to come in and ride herd on U.S. attorneys? I'm inclined to the view that maybe the judge got ahead of himself on this signing."

Justice Department attorneys argued that the Justice Department — had the sole right of prosecuting. Attorneys for the Mississippi federal judge argued that procedural rules required the district attorney to participate even though he, or his superiors, opposed prosecution.

Attorney John W. Douglas of the Justice Department said both that agency and the FBI made detailed investigations into the perjury question and found no basis for prosecution.

He said the district attorney should not be forced to proceed against his better judgment and "he should not subscribe to something he believes has no merit."

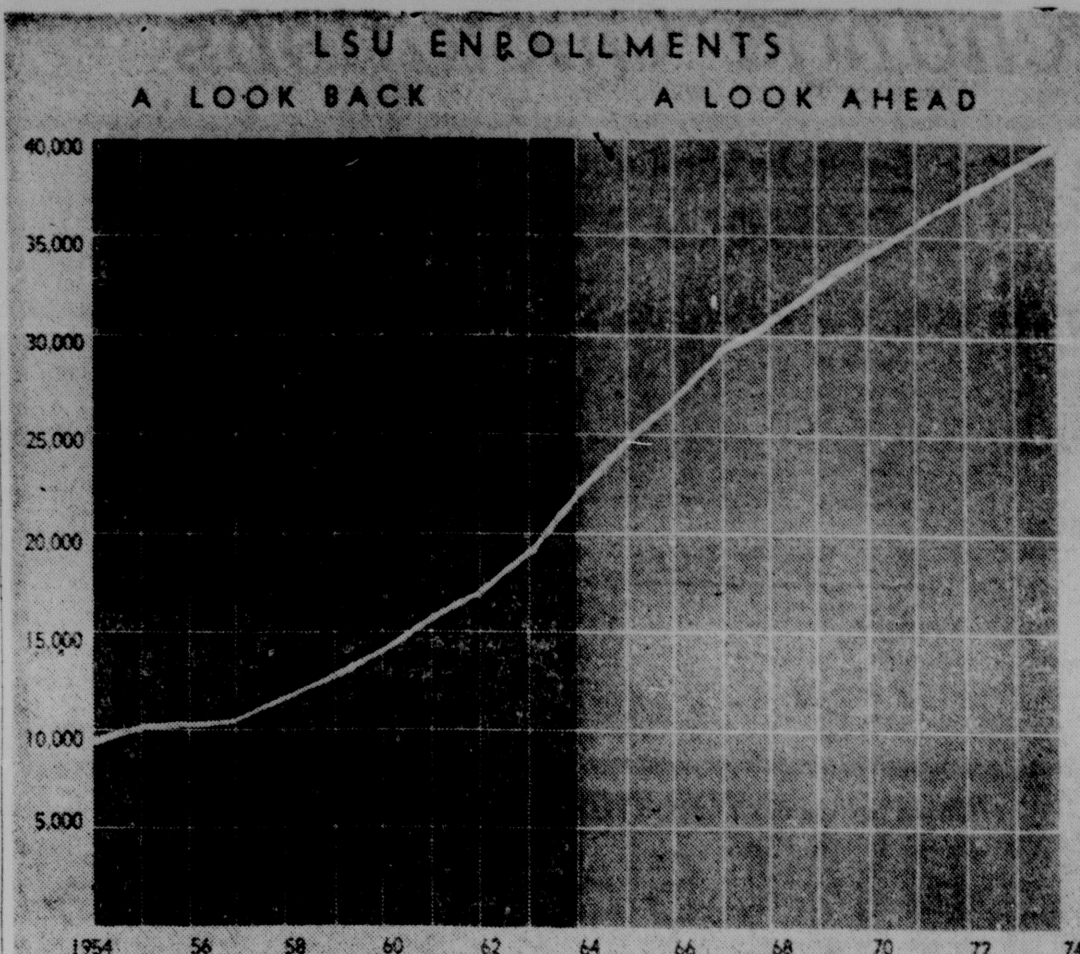

Attorney Earl Thomas of Jackson, representing Cox, said the signing of an indictment by the district attorney was merely certification of an authentic act by the grand jury.

Another of Cox's attorneys, L. A. Pyle of Jackson, said the judge and prosecutor "should put their heads together."

"That's the very danger," interrupted Chief Judge Elbert P. Tuttle of Atlanta, pointing a finger. "At what point does a judge become the prosecutor? Once a judge starts prosecuting and tells the attorney 'You must proceed,' we are dangerously treading on a breach of the fundamental separation of powers."

Judge John Minor Wisdom of New Orleans asked: "Suppose the government felt those men were guilty of perjury but that a sentence of five years would be a setback to their voting cause — wouldn't that be a valid excuse for not prosecuting?"

"No," said Pyle. "Civil rights has nothing to do with it."

THIS CHART depicts the surging growth of the Louisiana State University student body. It shows the university system with 40,000 students 10 years from now. Enrollment is now about 22,000. Recent addition of two new campuses in Shreveport and Eunice is expected to add further to the enrollment. LSU President John A. Hunter has predicted 25,000 students for next fall, of which 17,000 are expected on the Baton Rouge campus.

IN VIET NAM

Buddhists Protest Worry To Premier

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A flurry of activity at Buddhist headquarters today gave the impression that Buddhists are gearing for an all-out effort to depose Premier Tran Van Huong this weekend. The dusty, sprawling compound looked like a command post.

Coupled with the possibility of fresh trouble from clerical circles of the premier was the fact the fourth anniversary of the Viet Cong's political agency, the National Liberation Front, fell on Sunday. Saigon police went on full alert.

The Viet Cong have stepped up their propaganda lately and could time a terrorist drive for the anniversary. The Red guerrillas claimed in a statistic-packed statement Thursday that they have wrested the military initiative from U.S. and South Vietnamese forces.

Monks and organizers bearing brief cases rushed in and out of the Buddhist headquarters. Office telephone bells jangled an accompaniment to temple gongs. Leaflets urged the faithful to meet Saturday for an all-night rally against the government. The third and biggest in a series of hunger strikes was proposed for Sunday.

Buddhist sources said more than a dozen Buddhists have volunteered for self-immolation and that a monk might commit suicide by fire to spur the campaign against the man who has called for removal of politics from the pagodas.

There were rumors these tactics, which helped build up pressure against the late President Ngo Dinh Diem, might be carried out in front of the U.S. Embassy or the presidential palace.

A charge of persecution evidently stems mainly from Huong's refusal to revamp his government to conform with Buddhist blueprints and his use of troops and police to break up riotous street demonstrations.

On the perimeter of the crisis were these developments: —The government announced creation of an armed forces council to hammer out differences between Vietnamese general officers, including oral sniping by young commanders at their seniors. The council will have only advisory powers, but is expected to limit the authority of the armed forces commander, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

Tech Educator Named To Post

RUSTON (Special) — Dr. Rhesa M. Allen Jr., of the department of petroleum and geological engineering at Louisiana Tech, has been elected vice-chairman of the Southeastern Section of the Geological Society of America.

As vice-chairman, Dr. Allen is responsible for the progress of the annual meeting of the southeastern section to be held at the University of Georgia during April, 1966.

The southeastern section is one of four regional sections of the society and includes all Geological Society members in Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Chief of State Phan Khuc Suu proposed to add seven new members to the High National Council, a provisional legislature whose active membership has dwindled this fall from the original 17 to nine. Suu suggested names representing the south, central and north sections of the country to try to overcome regional factionalism that has damaged the council's work.

Baptist Church To Show Movie

The First Baptist Church of Monroe will show an outdoor movie, "Glory in the Highest," Sunday through Thursday.

The movie will be shown on an 18 by 24-foot screen attached to the outside wall of the educational building and it will be in color.

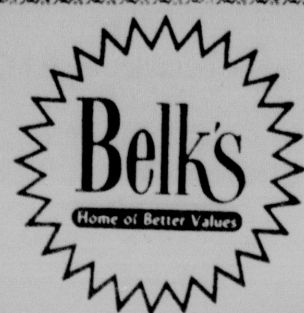

The film will run 30 minutes, and Dr. James T. Horton, the pastor, said that the public is invited to use the church's parking lot. Admission is free to the movie which begins at 8:30 a.m.

Released recently by Concordia Films, the show seeks to realistically portray the events of the first Christmas.

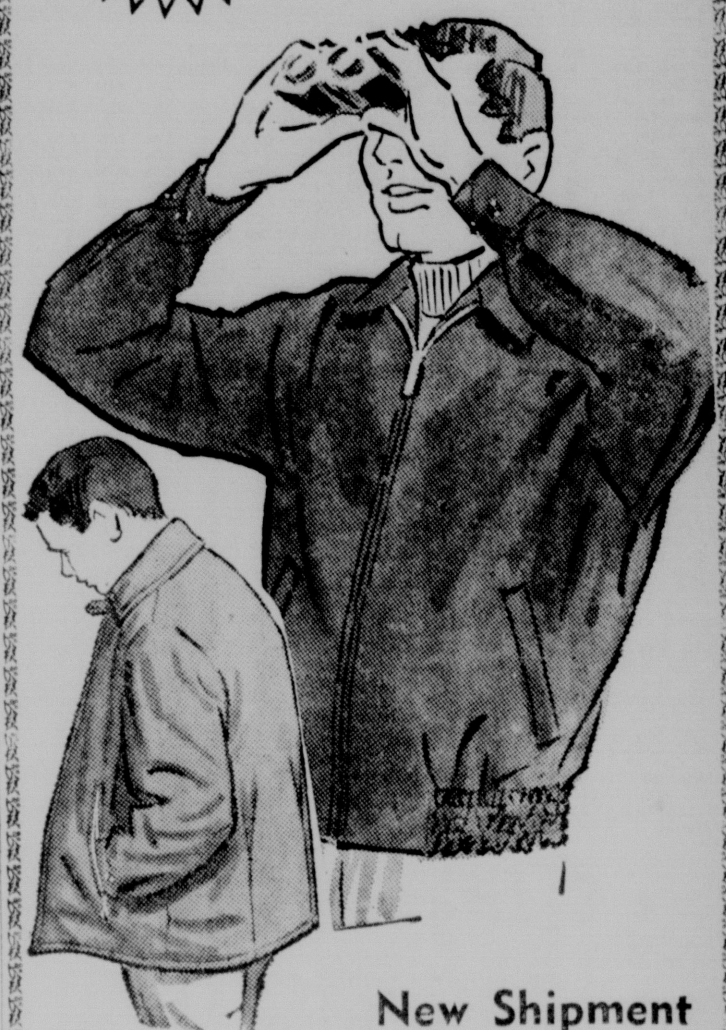

A similar program has been sponsored by the church for the past several years.

Pirates Scuttle Tigers

To Capture A Crown

Hillman Is Margin For 26-13 Victory

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Editor

OAK GROVE — Quarterback Mike Hillman proved his press clippings are for real here Friday night on a frozen football field where he guided the Lockport Pirates to a 26-13 victory over Oak Grove to win the Class A championship.

The contest, played before a packed house that would not stay home despite 22 degree weather, climaxed an undefeated season for Lockport in its first year of Class A football. Lockport won the Class B title last year and now has been victorious in 21 straight games.

Oak Grove, not given a chance in district pre-season polls, lost 26-13.

gave Hillman and his mates all they wanted — and then some — in the season finale.

Before Hillman sparked two last half TD's the district 2-A Tigers had twice gone in front of Lockport and held a 13-13 tie at intermission.

However, Hillman, who was definitely the difference in the game, would not be denied. He ran for one 50-yard touchdown in the third quarter and iced the game away with five minutes left in the last period when he sent fullback Carol Breau busting across from six yards out for the final marker.

If there had to be a turning point it could possibly have been during the early stages of the third quarter when Oak Grove unleashed a beautiful 62 yard touchdown play, which was called back. The TD would have given Oak Grove a 20-13 lead and a definite mental lift.

The play, which was nullified due to an offside penalty after a fake punt that fooled the entire Lockport team. Willie Holley, back in punt formation on a fourth and 10 situation at the Oak Grove 38, hit Harvey Hemphill with a screen pass on the left sidelines and he went all of the way untouched. However, it was to no avail.

TIGERS TALLY

Oak Grove wasted little time proving it had come to play ball against the state's top ranked Class A club. The Tigers took the opening kickoff and set up operations on their 41 after a fine 29 yard runback by Benny Murphy.

After Mickey Broadway and Mike Gammill combined for 15 yards on three rushing attempts to give Oak Grove a first down on the visitors' 44, quarterback Jim Boyles caught the Pirates off guard with a 36-yard pass play to sophomore end Mike Poillard.

Broadway went over from the one two plays later and the Tigers were in front, 6-0. Hemphill was stopped short on the PAT attempt.

Lockport returned the favor following the kickoff — and in the same manner — when Hillman set up the tally with a 43-yard pass to halfback Fay Ac-ment that gave the Pirates a first down on the 14.

Breaux scored from the two seconds later after carrying three straight times.

The two clubs battled in mid-field during the remainder of the first quarter and most of the second before Oak Grove took over on its own 19, and began an 81-yard sustained drive to paydirt.

Big plays on the long drive were a 22-yard scamper by Gammill, in which he shook off at least six men, and an 11 yarder by Boyles that gave the Tigers a first at the 25.

Murphy, one of Oak Grove's most outstanding players all night, picked up the TD on a two-yard plunge. Boyles then hit Gammill for the extra point.

Only two minutes were left in the half and it seemed the Tigers would carry a seven point lead into the second half.

But at this point Hillman dug into his bag of tricks and came up with a formula for "instant points."

Lockport got possession at the Oak Grove 49 following an unsuccessful Tiger onsides kick. Hillman wasted no time at all. The southpaw thrower, rated as one of the best quarterbacks in Louisiana prep football, faded to his 40 on first down and hit Breau on the Oak Grove 20.

Breaux picked up six yards and then Hillman coolly tossed to Acement for the TD.

On the extra point, Hillman lined up as if to kick but the snap went to Acement who was kneeling, and the little halfback swept right end for the point with Hillman leading interference.

After battling on even terms until the last minute of the third quarter Lockport took over on its 50. On first down Hillman rolled right, picked up a block at the line of scrimmage, and swept 50 yards for the go-ahead score. The PAT was no good but Lockport 19-13 going into the last quarter.

Midway in the fourth period Lockport again took over on the 50 and tallied in eight plays behind the running and passing of Hillman. Breaux picked up the final TD on a six-yard plunge and Hillman climaxed his big night by running the extra point.

Murphy led Oak Grove rushers with 106 yards on 11 carries and Gammill picked up 56 on eight trips.

The loss leaves Oak Grove with a 12-2 record.

Scoring Summary:

FUTRELL LEADS

Calhoun Downs Rebel 5, 64-53

Calhoun, riding the hot shooting of James Futrell, walloped West Monroe, 64 - 53, at the West Monroe High School Gym Friday night in a non-district contest.

Futrell ended the night with 311 points, with just under half coming on free throws. The all - stater connected on 15 free throws and eight field goals with his total of 31.

The win avenged an earlier loss to the Rebels, which was the hosts opening game, 77 - 65, November 27.

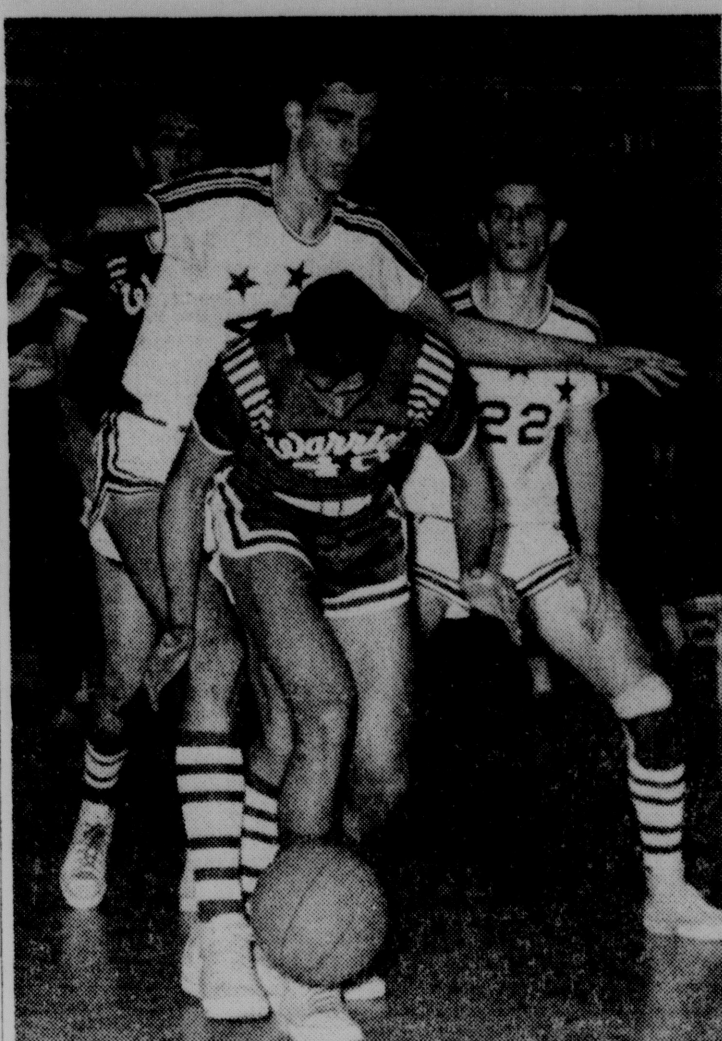

Sammy Brewster, West Monroe's talented 6 - 4 senior center, who has been averaging 24 points per contest, could manage only 16 Friday night. Brewster connected on five field goals and six free throws before fouling out in the third quarter of play.

Although Brewster was the only Rebel to foul out, four others had four fouls apiece and two had three. The fouling showed in the final score, Calhoun scoring just as many points on free throws as field goals. The Chieftans sank 16 field goals and 32 free throws for the 64 points.

Futrell was followed by Marion Jennings with 14 points, four field goals and six free throws, and Johnny Frost with six of seven free throws for 32 points. The Tigers' high men were Ken Drost and Harry Heroman with 20 points each.

LSU never lost the lead after moving in front at 17-15 early in the game. The Tigers led 48-42 at halftime and stretched their margin to 14 points at 72-58 with 11 minutes to play.

IN SLOW, SLUGGISH TILT

Ouachita Topples Warriors, 46-32

By BOB CARROLL
World Sports Writer

Ouachita countered a sluggish offensive attack with a sufficient defense to paste a 46-32 defeat on St. Frederick in an error-plagued game played at the Ouachita Gym Friday night.

Elmer Smith was the only player hitting in double figures during the contest which saw only brief phases of offensive power. He led Ouachita with 15 points. Raymond Varino paced St. Frederick with nine markers. The Lions could not safely tuck away their ninth win until midway of the fourth period when Don Corbin, Smith and Gary Armstrong sank two baskets each to push Ouachita into a 16 point lead — 46-32 — with only three minutes left to play. Both teams got off to slow starts and could not make much headway in the opening minutes with ball handling errors and busted plays taking their tolls.

Ouachita was the first team to get the feel of the floor and rolled to a 12-4 lead by the end of the first quarter behind the shooting of Smith and Armstrong.

St. Frederick got its sights zeroed in on the basket midway of the second period and cut the margin to three points at 10-17.

by the half with Pete Cernigliaro, Tommy Gardner and David Ezernack leading the rally.

The Warriors got to within one point at 22-22 with three minutes remaining in the third period on a free throw by Andy Varino, but this was the last shot that St. Frederick could get in the period as Ouachita pulled into a 28-22 lead by the end of the quarter.

The fourth stanza was all Ouachita as the Lions began hitting from the outside, thwarting the St. Frederick defense, to put the game into the record books as a win and a 9-5 record.

St. Frederick dropped to 5-6 for the campaign.

Ouachita will host Woodlawn next Tuesday in a District 1-AAA encounter, while St. Frederick is idle until after the holidays when the Warriors journey to Sterlington.

The Lion B team won its game, 35-17, with Van Pardue leading the way with 11 points.

Ouachita's girls had little trouble in taking a 52-28 victory, with Debbie Guinn hitting 18 points and Sandra Calloway netting 16.

Pat Trudna led St. Frederick with 14 points, followed closely by Ann Licht with 13.

13, four field goals and five free throws. The next highest Chieftan was Ronnie Higgenbotham with four points, all on free throws.

To keep up the roll of a foul-filled contest, Calhoun had two boys foul out and one with four and another three fouls.

The only other Rebel to hit in double figures besides Brewster was junior forward, Johnny Watkins, who netted 10, four field goals and two free throws.

Jimmy Aulds, Ray Alexander and Floyd Reeves each canned eight points for the Rebels in the losing effort.

West Monroe led Calhoun at halftime, 25 - 20, but fell behind, 41 - 37, at the end of three periods, and finally losing, 64 - 53.

The Rebels record fell to 2-6 and they meet always tough Byrd of Shreveport in a district 1 - AAAA clash Tuesday night. West Monroe is now 0 - 2 in district play.

West Monroe's sextet won the opening girls contest, 52 - 33 and ran its record for the season to 6 - 2. Linda Smith paced the girls' win with 20 points with Martha Rose Rutledge and Sherry Sturgiss following with 13 and 12 points respectively.

Carolyn Thompson and Carolyn Brownlee had 16 and 12 points, in that order, for the losing Chieftan girl's squad.

IN THIBODAUX

Indians Seeking 6th Straight Win

Northeast State's basketball team hopes to write an appropriate finish to this year's part of the 1964-65 cage season Saturday night against Nicholls State in Thibodaux.

The Northeast Indians, who have only a one-point loss to Mississippi State to blot their eight - game record, will be meeting Nicholls for the second time in Saturday's 7:30 p.m. contest.

Earlier, on Dec. 10 in Monroe, the Indians beat the Colonels, 71-60. Coach Lenny Fant is expecting a much closer game this time around.

Nicholls has a 2-7 record but has a fine group of young players headed by freshman John "Champ" Summers. Nicholls Coach Jim Mahoney is a Northeast graduate and would like nothing better than to knock off his alma mater's basketball team.

Following today's game, the Northeast players will be off until after Christmas, then return for workouts in preparation for the opening of the Gulf States Conference race against Louisiana Tech in Ruston Jan. 5.

Probable starters for Northeast today are backcourtors Dick Williams (6-3), Tommy Enloe (5-9) and Glynn Sauters (6-2) and post men Larry Butler and Paul Thompson, both 6-4.

Northeast Signs All-State Back From Arkansas

An all-state quarterback from Arkansas — Tom Jerry of Junction City — will play his college football at Northeast State next fall.

Coach Dixie White of Northeast announced the signing of Jerry, named to the Arkansas all-state team recently, this week.

The Northeast recruit, who stands 6-1 and weighs 175, was named the most outstanding back in his district this fall after leading Junction City to a 7-1-1 record and the district championship.

He completed 48 of 76 passes this season, passing for 10 touchdowns and scoring six himself while averaging 5.7 yards a rush. He punted for a 35.6-yard average and played end on defense.

Jerry completed 59.9 per cent of his passes during three years of high school football.

He lettered in basketball and track in addition to football and was selected Junction City's most valuable player in football by his teammates his junior and senior years.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jerry and his high school coach was Howard Muse.

scoring with a 20.6-point average. Sauters is averaging 16.9 points, Butler 12.5, Williams 11.9 and Thompson 6.8.

Butler and Thompson are tied for the team rebound lead with 7.6 averages while Williams and reserve Lawson Swearingin have 4.9 averages.

SURPRISE MOVE

Baugh Resigns As Oiler Coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Sammy Baugh, hired abruptly June 1 as head coach of the Houston Oilers, resigned just as abruptly Friday so he can devote more time to his 6,355-acre West Texas ranch.

"I like coaching football but I love ranching," the former Texas Christian University and Washington Redskins passing champion said in making his surprising announcement at a news conference.

"I felt like I was cheating the Oilers because I'm happier at the ranch and like to be there during the feeding season," Baugh said.

The resignation was unexpected because Baugh's one-year contract was extended through 1965 in mid-October even though the Oilers — the American Football League champions in 1960 and 1961 — were well into their poorest season in history.

Baugh, 50, said he is leaving the Oilers — now 3-10 for the season — after Sunday's final game with the Denver Broncos.

Both Baugh and K. S. Adams Jr., the club owner, emphasized, however, Baugh would be an applicant for a job as backfield assistant under the new head coach.

Adams had made a surprising announcement of his own June 11 when he called a news conference and said he had fired Frank (Pop) Ivy, the head coach in 1962 and 1963, and replaced him with Baugh.

Only two weeks earlier Ivy had hired Baugh as an assistant.

Five months later, in extending Baugh's one-year contract, Adams said Baugh was doing a good job during a rebuilding year for the former league champions.

Adams gave no hint as to Baugh's possible successor but said: "We're not going to dilly-dally around in selecting a new man."

Asked if he would consider Lou Rymkus, the man who coached the 1960 champions, Adams said:

"Lou's chief forte is as an offensive line coach."

The Houston Post said Friday night Hugh (Bones) Taylor, 41, Oiler backfield coach, is expected to be named head coach to succeed Baugh.

Taylor said he had not discussed the coaching job with Oiler officials but indicated he would like to have it.

"Right now I don't know if I still am an assistant coach," said Taylor, who was one of the all-time great passing receivers in the NFL.

The Post also said it had learned that Rymkus will return as line coach under Taylor.

Rymkus was fired early in the 1961 season and was succeeded by Wally Lemm who guided the club to 10 straight victories and a second title.

Lemm then moved to the St. Louis Cardinals in an unofficial AFL-NFL coaching swap that brought Ivy to Houston.

Baugh, as head coach, and Carroll Martin, general manager, worked as a team in the Oiler front office but Baugh indicated he still had too many administrative duties that required year-around attention.

Bulldogs Upset Sulphur In AAA

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Underdog Baton Rouge High won its first state football championship in 20 years Friday night by downing third-ranked Sulphur 6-0 to take the triple-A crown.

The Bulldogs scored in the third quarter to climax a 72-yard march in 10 plays.

Joe Womack faked a handoff to George Bevan and then skirled end for seven yards and the touchdown.

Baton Rouge last won a state football title in 1944 when it beat Lake Charles 6-0.

The championship capped Baton Rouge's meteoric return to the ranks of triple-A grid powers under the leadership of Ray (Coon) Porta, who took over last year as head coach.

For years, Istrouma had dominated District 3-AAA. Porta was an Istrouma assistant coach before taking over at BRHS.

Baton Rouge lost only one game in regular season play and wound up ranked sixth in the final Associated Press triple-A poll.

The deepest Sulphur penetration came just before intermission when the Tors moved to the BRHS 21. Early in the third period, Sulphur reached the Bulldog 28 but was forced to punt after a 15-yard clipping penalty and a three-yard loss when Jimmy Rutledge tackled Wayne Stroeder.

Baton Rouge led 185 yards to 141 yards in total offense and had a 10-9 edge in first downs.

D. L. Martine of Sulphur was the game's top rusher with 78 yards in 16 carries. Bevan paced Baton Rouge with 68 yards in 14 attempts.

Assumption Takes AA Championship

NAPOLEONVILLE, La. (AP) — Halfback Johnny O'Neal brought Assumption of Napoleonville the state double-A football championship Friday night as the Mustangs defeated Central High of Baton Rouge 7-2.

O'Neal, who picked up 81 yards in 11 carries, grabbed 73 of them with 5:35 left in the second period as he rambled for the only touchdown. Ray Aucoin's kick made it 7-0.

In the fourth quarter, Central end Ray Devall blocked an Aucoin punt in the end zone for a safety.

Central led 9-4 in first downs but Assumption gained 146 yards rushing to 130 for Central. Assumption passed for nine yards and Central had no aerial yardage.

Assumption, winning its first state title in football, was unranked in the final Associated Press double-A poll. Central was No. 7.

McNeese Snaps Losing Streak With 55-45 Win

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — McNeese State snapped a five game losing streak Friday night with a 55-45 victory over East Texas State.

Clyde Briley, McNeese's scoring ace, bombed in 29 points to take scoring honors. Dave McCright paced East Texas with 17.

McNeese led 24-23 at the half and broke the tilt open shortly after intermission, outscoring East Texas 14-2 in the first eight minutes.

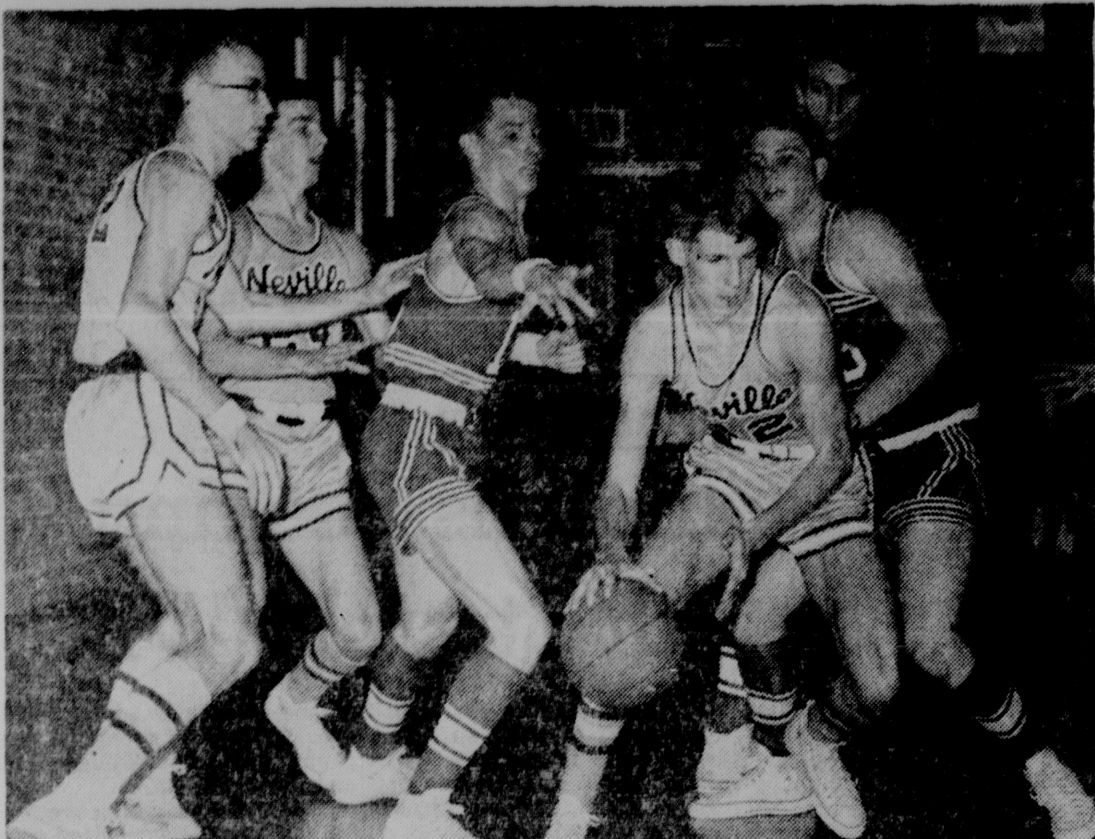

The victory gave McNeese a 2-5 mark, while East Texas is 1-6.

FORMER LOOP RIVALS

Tigers Top Bearcats Behind Brooks, Dunn

While the Tigers seemed to have an easy go of it, the Ruston Bearcats stayed far enough in the background Friday night to pose a serious threat before the Neville quintet came away with a 66-52 victory over its former district rival.

With little Bill Dunn carrying the scoring load in the initial half and J. Dodd Brooks taking over in the second, the Tigers managed to stay in front of the Bearcats throughout the game and held a 43-29 halftime lead.

The shooting of Cecil Barham, Ruston's jump shot ace and Buddy Camors the Bearcats pulled to within three points of the Tigers at one point in the opening frame before the Neville bunch began to take over on the backboards.

After a standoff third period, Brooks, who played one of his better games on the boards, began hitting in earnest and finished as high point man for the night with 18 markers.

Dunn was almost not outdone and hit 16 points with the majority of his tallies coming in the first half with a combination of lay ups and short jump shots.

Jay Eppinette, a Tiger with a knack for making unusual shots, pushed in 15 points with Barham going for 10 for the Bearcats before fouling out late in the contest. Camors got 16 to lead the Ruston team and Keith Squires followed with nine.

Neville's other starter, David Baker, was also in double figures with 10 points.

The Tigers also took a junior varsity game, 43-31.

With Neville defending man-to-man and Ruston in a zone defense, the Tigers constructed a 25-13 first quarter lead then defended in a zone for a part of the second frame while building up their halftime edge.

In a rather unexciting third period, Neville outshot the Bearcats, eight points to five for a 51-34 lead. Things began to click with 5:41 left in the game when Brooks tallied on one of his several lay ups. Every Neville player got on the scoreboard, including one of the several reserves sent in by Coach Benny Hollis.

Neville is slated to host Woodlawn Tuesday night in a district 1-AAA encounter. The Tigers will carry a 10-1 record into the contest with their only loss coming at the hands of district foe Byrd. The Tigers are 1-1 in district play.

Rebels Promise To Rush Rhome

HOUSTON (AP) — Mississippi's Rebels have promised Jerry Rhome he will face a wide variety of rush patterns today as the favored Rebels meet Tulsa and the NCAA pass champion in the sixth Bluebonnet Bowl.

"It will be rush, rush, rush," Johnny Vaught, the Rebel coach said Friday. "There will be a number of different patterns."

Despite a disappointing 5-4-1 season, Vaught's Rebels are 11-point favorites over Tulsa's 8-2 Hurricane that led the nation in total offense and scoring as Rhome set 17 records.

A crowd of 50,000 is expected at the 70,000-seat Rice University Stadium for the nationally televised game from which each school is to pick up from $135,000 to $150,000.

The game will be televised by ABC starting at 3:30 p.m., EST.

It is the second straight year for the Bluebonnet to have the nation's collegiate pass champion. A year ago Baylor's Don Trull set three national records before using 26 completions to defeat Louisiana State, 14-7, in the Houston classic.

Trull later signed a pro contract with the Houston Oilers and Rhome has indicated he may decide between the Oilers and the Dallas Cowboys immediately after today's game.

Rhome completed 224 of 326 passes for 2,870 yards his senior year. Trull completed 117 attempts for 2,157 yards.

Glenn Dobbs, the Tulsa coach, said Friday he has great confidence in Rhome but respects Mississippi's fullback slant and quarterback outside plays.

"Since we don't have any speed, the short passes may give us trouble," Dobbs said. "Our boys are not quick and fast but they are big and hard-nosed."

In addition to Vaught's warning of several defensive rush alignments, Dobbs expects the Rebels to operate its offense from a variety of patterns — the 1, pro T, slot, split end and split flanker back.

Each coach reported only one injured player. An elbow injury is expected to keep James Mike Nelson, a Rebel guard, out of the game. Tom McGuire, a Tulsa lineman, has an ankle injury but is expected to see action.

Grambling Inks 2 Carroll High Football Stars

GRAMBLING (Special) — Coach Eddie Robinson of Grambling College, who has never reigned himself to recruiting leftovers, Thursday signed two showcase athletes from Carroll High School in Monroe.

All-state quarterback James Harris, a 6-3 202-pound honor student able to meet the competitive demands of the moment, and his favorite receiver, Theodis Lee, a 6-7 192-pound end, signed four-year grant-in-aid scholarships to play with the Tigers.

In describing Harris, the Grambling coach called him "the best looking football prospect in the state with outstanding natural ability and the perseverance that leads to stardom."

Harris threw 21 touchdown passes as a junior and completed a brilliant career at Carroll with 15 this year.

He likes to throw and is built to stand the buffering of a severe rush. Robinson is confident that he has the drive and smartness for immediate stardom in the Southwestern Athletic Conference.

Tigers-Bishop Tilt Rescheduled For Mansfield

GRAMBLING (Special) — The Grambling Tigers will have to wait at least another year before they can receive the sobriety approval of Shreveport basketball fans.

Athletic Director Eddie Robinson announced late Friday that the Grambling-Bishop game scheduled for Shreveport, has been moved to Mansfield.

The game will be played in the DeSota High School Gymnasium.

Fred Hobdy's Tigers (5-0) are off to a magnificent start and are averaging 103 points per game. The team is ranked second nationally in both the Associated Press and United Press International polls.

Tryouts Slated At Boy's Club

Basketball tryouts for boys eight to 12 years old will be held at the West Monroe Boy's Club Gymnasium beginning at 10:00 o'clock today.

The results of the tryouts will name boys to teams in the West Monroe Boy's Club league.

Kentucky Takes 102-78 Win In Cage Tourney

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Illinois pulverized Dayton 104-86 and Kentucky reluctantly crushed West Virginia 102-78 Friday night in the first round of the University of Kentucky Invitational Basketball Tournament.

The eighth-ranked Wildcats took a 10-point halftime lead over the scrappy Mountaineers, blew it and then scratched their way to the final 24-point edge behind the scoring of John Adams and Tommy Kron. Illinois' hot-shooting overcame a 35-point performance by Dayton's 6-foot-11 Henry Finkel and the Illinois led all the way.

Kentucky and Illinois meet for the championship tonight after Dayton and West Virginia play for third place.

Playing in spurts before a standing room crowd of 11,500 the Wildcats at times found themselves outplayed at their own game — the fast break.

Bill Maphis of West Virginia led all scorers with 27 points but Adams finished with a career high of 24 and Kron equalled him.

Adams hit three separate three-point trips at crucial moments, the last one giving Kentucky an 81-66 lead with 5:11 left. Until that time, the outcome was in doubt.

Illinois, with three of its starters scoring a total of 72 points, hit 41 of its 73 field goal attempts for 56.2 per cent. Dayton scored on 44.6 per cent, 37 of 83 shots.

Finkel hit 16 of 26 field goal attempts and three of five from the free throw line, but all of his field goals were from within five feet.

BOSTON VS. BUFFALO

Two-Point Conversion Could Be Big Factor

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Mike Holovak of the Boston Patriots said Friday the American Football League's two-point conversion rule would change a lot of his thinking for Sunday's all-or-nothing game with Buffalo for the Eastern Division title.

The rule has been in effect since the league was founded but the fact that Buffalo, leading by a half game, can win the title by a tie makes it an important factor. The division champ will be host to San Diego in the AFL title game Saturday Dec. 26.

"Buffalo has a big advantage on being able to win with a tie," said Holovak Friday after the Patriots' short workout in snow-covered East Boston stadium. "Whether we would go for one or two points would depend on the game situation, how we have been moving the ball and the time remaining."

When the Pats beat the Bills 36-28 in Buffalo Nov. 15, Gino Cappelletti caught a two-point conversion pass from Babe Parilli that put Boston ahead to stay.

They had been trailing 28-21 in the fourth period when Parilli hit Larry Garrison with a TD pass, making it 28-27. Instead of going for the tie against the then-unbeaten Bills, Holovak ordered Parilli to try for two. He got them and it was 29-28. The Pats added another score later.

Although Holovak wouldn't disclose his strategy in advance, it was expected that he will go for two points if he scores first. After all, Boston has to win. In their case a tie would be as bad as a defeat.

Holovak said he did not expect much in the way of new formations from Buffalo because "they already tried them all — slot, double wing and double flanker. What can they do different? When you do something well, you only help the other club by trying to change. We think they will do the same things they have been doing all year."

Boston sprang a double wing on Buffalo in their first game and has continued to use it effectively. In this formation the Patriots have only one man, Garrison, behind the quarterback. Tony Romeo and Art Graham line up as tight ends and Cappelletti and Jim Colclough as flankers.

Cappelletti, for one, will not be surprised to see Buffalo do the same thing against Boston. Holovak said he didn't know whether Jackie Kemp or Daryle Lamonia would start for Buffalo and indicated he didn't care too much.

"Up to last week you always prepared for Buffalo by assuming Kemp would start," said Holovak. "But Lamonia went all the way last week. Now you don't know."

Boston's blitzing defense puts great pressure on an in-the-pocket passer like Kemp. On the other hand a less experienced man like Lamonia who is known as a scrambler, might have trouble making quick decisions to counter a blitz.

"We know one thing," said Holovak. "Cookie Gilchrist will put a lot of pressure on any team. We have been fortunate against Cookie so far. I hope we can say the same Sunday night."

Holovak said Tom Yewcic, his second quarterback and punter, still was doubtful because of an injured back. However, Holovak was optimistic.

"If we had to play today Yewcic could play," he said. "If he can't go Sunday we might activate Don Allard. Don used to play with us and he has been playing with the Boston Sweepers in the Atlantic Coast League. We'll have him ready just in case."

Holovak said the field at Fenway Park where the big game will be played is in fine condition, having been covered for three weeks with 160 tons of hay and several tarpaulins.

The long range weather forecast calls for continued fair weather and temperatures in the low 30s on Sunday.

The other games on the league's closing day finds the New York Jets seeking their first road victory of the year at Kansas City; Sammy Baugh closing out his career as head coach of the Houston Oilers in a home game with the Denver Broncos and San Diego preparing for the Dec. 26 title game in a contest at Oakland.

In a surprise move, Baugh resigned as Houston coach Friday, effective with the end of the season.

Ridgewood In 20-7 Victory For B Crown

KINDER, La. (AP) — Unde-feated Ridgewood Prep of Metairie rolled to a 20-7 victory over Kinder Friday night for its first class B prep state football crown.

Ridgewood, ranked second in the final Associated Press class B poll, had only a tie with Dutchtown in the playoffs to mar its 1964 record.

For Kinder, ranked No. 3, the loss snapped a 13-game victory streak.

Ridgewood marched 75 yards in 13 plays the first time it got the ball and scored on a two-yard buck by Ken Lyles. Later in the first quarter, the Eagles picked up a Kinder fumble with Pete Adams scoring from the 10 yard line.

Kinder bounced back in the second quarter for its only tally. With Jim Green running 63 yards to the one to set up Earl Henderson's scoring run on the next play.

Butch Russell knifed over from six yards out before inter-mission to give Ridgewood a 20-7 lead.

Adams was top rusher with 138 yards.

Nellie Fox will be a coach with the Houston Colt .45s next season. A second baseman, he once was the American League's most valuable player.

COLD, HIGH WINDS

Ideal Weather Conditions Set For Liberty Classic

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — "Ideal playing conditions, just ideal," smiled Utah football Coach Ray Nagel as he gleefully listened to the forecast of 25-degree temperatures and 35-mile-an-hour winds for today's Liberty Bowl football game.

Nagel wasn't talking with tongue in cheek. Rather, he was looking forward to the game with West Virginia in this ocean resort's mammoth Convention Hall — college football's first indoor bowl game.

While the wind whistled in off the Atlantic and made walking virtually impossible on the famed boardwalk, the Utah and West Virginia teams went through their final workouts Friday as snug and comfortable as though they were lounging on a beach in the sunny southland instead of the giant oceanfront auditorium here.

"In fact," said promoter A. L. (Bud) Dudley, "this is the first time in the six years of the Liberty Bowl that a coach asked me to turn down the heat."

West Virginia's Gene Corum made the request after putting his squad through a workout in the 72-degree hall. Dudley promised to have the temperature down to a more comfortable 67 by game time.

The Liberty Bowl is being played here for the first time after five cold and often lean years attendance-wise in Philadelphia.

Kickoff for the nationally televised (ABC-TV) contest is 12:45 p.m., with a crowd of around 8,500 expected.

Both coaches were lavish in praising the playing conditions. The field consists of three inches of sod over an inch or so of burlap, making for a flat, hard gridiron that promises a wide-open contest.

"If you're going to have a bowl game in the north, this is the place to have it," Corum said. "There's no wind and the field is always dry, so you can count on your passing game and it's impossible for your game plan to get washed out."

The only thing that caused a little apprehension was the 400-mercury vapor lights installed for last August's Democratic national convention.

The lights threatened to play havoc with punt receivers, since looking straight up into the lights is like looking at 400 small-size suns, each with an area of glare around it.

"The kick receivers, particularly on punts, might have to play it safe," Corum said.

The game itself would be an attractive match on any field. Utah's rugged defense, which yielded only 6.2 points a game in compiling an 8-2 record and held six opponents without a touchdown, will have to stop the passing of West Virginia's Allen McCune.

The junior quarterback was switched from safety in mid-season and sparked the Mountaineers to five victories in the last six games and an over-all 7-3 record. McCune completed 60 of 99 passes for 911 yards and 10 touchdowns.

McCune's favorite target is tight end Milt Clegg, who latched onto 24 passes for 345 yards and three touchdowns.

The Mountaineers' chief running threat is fullback Dick Leffridge with 461 yards and a 4.0 average.

Utah is a slight favorite, chiefly because of that stiff defense and an exceptional two-way end named Roy Jefferson. The Compton, Calif., senior, a high draft choice of both pro leagues, plays split end on offense and corner back on defense. He and wingback John Pease tied for pass-catching honors with 21 apiece.

The Redskins use three units — a two-way team, an offensive group and a defensive platoon. The two-way group plays almost half the game. In contrast, West Virginia has only offensive and defensive units.

Utah has two fine quarterbacks in Richie Gorth and Ernie Allen. The Utes' top runner is fullback Allen Jacobs with 695 yards, followed by tailback Ron Coleman with 596 yards and a 5.5 average.

MOTHER'S ESTATE

Scranton Wrestles With IRS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania is fighting an Internal Revenue Service claim of more than $600,000 against his mother's estate — contending instead that the government owes the estate $265,000.

The litigation over the estate of Marion Margery Scranton — well-known for years in Pennsylvania social and political circles — was disclosed Friday in records of the U.S. Tax Court.

Mrs. Scranton died June 23, 1960, at the age of 76. She left an estate valued at more than $7 million. Scranton, as a co-executor of the estate, paid the government $3,331,770 in inheritance taxes. But the IRS told the 47-year-old Republican the estate still owes $663,151.

Scranton, in his petition to the Tax Court earlier this week, asserted that after studying IRS adjustments he has concluded that he overpaid the government by $265,860 and should be refunded that amount.

The dispute centers on gifts from Mrs. Scranton to her family in the last three years of her life, as well as the younger Scranton's claim that IRS should have credited the estate for some $667,000 in death taxes paid to Pennsylvania.

The petition said Mrs. Scranton died of a cardiovascular condition she had had for 25 years. But despite that history of heart disease, it said, she "led a full and active life and enjoyed good health during the years in which the gifts were made."

Mrs. Scranton's gifts to her family between 1955 and 1960 totaled more than $534,000. The petition said the only reason she didn't give gifts before 1955 was that her husband, Worthington Scranton, "did not favor the making of such gifts by himself and his wife." He died in February 1955.

Republican Struggle Grows Intense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republicans' post-election power struggle grew more intense Friday with the prospect of a fight for the House leadership and a forecast of an "acrimonious and brutal" showdown on the party chairmanship.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan announced a news conference for today and there are signs he will announce he will oppose Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana for the House minority leadership.

Dean Burch, the party's embattled national chairman, said he offered earlier this week to resign — as many moderate Republicans want him to — but that Sen. Barry Goldwater had said Burch should continue in his $30,000-a-year post. As a result, Burch was overheard telling party colleagues he plans to fight and "may go down with flags flying." Then he added: "This assures the national committee meeting will be an acrimonious and brutal affair."

His reference was to the Jan. 22-23 meeting in Chicago when Burch plans to ask a vote of confidence from the 132-member House committee.

Burch's remarks were made to some 20 members of the GOP Executive Finance Committee which a short time before had stepped into the burgeoning conflict over Halleck's post by endorsing the party's leadership in both House and Senate.

Adopted by the committee at a closed meeting on the Republicans' 1965 budget. Burch is not a member of the group but sat in on the session.

The surprise resolution coupled the confidence vote with a declaration that Republicans "should give these leaders their steadfast support in the trying circumstances certain to be encountered in the 89th Congress."

Ford has been under pressure from younger House members to declare himself a candidate for Halleck's post. And on Capitol Hill, signs pointed to such a declaration.

Although there were reports that Ford might intend make a harmony plea, a Halleck aide read the announcement of a news conference to mean just one thing: "Ford has decided to run."

Halleck, who has been GOP floor leader since 1959 when he ousted Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts from the post, was in Florida and not available for comment.

Burch, who gave the executive committee a million-dollar-plus budget proposal for 1965, is battling to withstand the drive of some liberal and moderate Republicans to oust him as chairman.

The Star said the plan would have Finch serve first as the national committee's executive director.

The home of Mrs. John Hester in Lake Providence was the setting of the regular monthly meeting of the Sprig and Twig Garden Club on Tuesday. Co-hostesses were Mrs. S. F. Dunlap and Mrs. Paul Rosenzweig.

The Christmas theme was beautifully carried out in the decorations. At the entrance of the Hester home a swag of pine and golden bells, tied with a red velvet ribbon, struck a note of welcome. The focal point of interest in the reception area was a trio of red robed carolers standing on the piano over which hung large red Christmas bells. A red stepladder, decorated with sprigs of holly, held a number of gayly wrapped packages. The refreshment table, overlaid with a green cloth, was centered with a silver floralabra entwined with ivy and red satin balls.

Mrs. E. K. Oswalt, presiding over the business session, welcomed Mrs. Michael Lensing as a new member.

Mrs. Pearce Bailey, special projects chairman, reported that tulip bulbs had been planted at the court house and that permission had been granted for the planting of zinnias on the levee.

Zeta Tau Alpha Dance
Festive Event At Club

Originality and festivity marked the Christmas dance given by Northeast State's collegiate chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

The gala event was held December 11 at Bayou Desiard Country Club where members, alumnae, special guests and dates danced in a holiday setting at this pre-yuletide affair. Welcoming guests were Mrs. Marcus Mapp, alumnae adviser, Jean Traylor, local chapter president, and her date, Wayne Verrett. They stood near a table bearing a colorful arrangement of fir, nuts, brilliant fruit and flowers reflecting in a barouche mirror.

Lynda Bryce presided at the guest book on a table bearing a single white candle in a silver holder encircled with holiday ornaments and greenery. The twelve nights of Christmas served as the decorative theme throughout the dance hall.

Ten-foot high glittering musical figures carrying out the motif included a piper, maidens in waiting, swan swimming, turtle doves, five golden rings, silver partridges, cardinal with a tall hat, milking maid and other cutouts.

Fronting the bandstand were glittered letters spelling the dance theme and above the orchestra was a gold partridge. Nearby stood a tall tree adorned with gold ropes and wrapped packages clustered beneath.

Individual tables were centered with branched candelabra in the shape of trees with votive lights of red and green.

The tea table was centered by a pyramid of green grapes interspersed with silver balls and illuminated by two candelabra with three tall white tapers in each. Hostesses alternated in serving punch from a silver bowl at one end.

Prenuptial Courtesies Honor Miss Dianne Goza

Two prenuptial courtesies this week complimented Miss Carol Dianne Goza, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellis Goza, who will become the bride of James Monroe Head Jr., also of this city on Saturday, December 26. Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mrs. Aubrey Young and James M. Head, both of Baton Rouge.

A quartet of hostesses including Mrs. Talmadge Stout, Mrs. Peggy Glaholt, Mrs. Robert Seemes Jr. and Mrs. Jack Dyer entertained Sunday, December 13 with a tea shower honoring Miss Goza. The Dyer home, 1717 Forsythe Avenue, was scene of the event between the hours of 3 until 5 p.m.

Receiving with the honoree were her mother, mother of her fiancé and Mrs. Dyer. For her party Miss Goza was wearing an emerald green silk sheath, complemented with bone and gold slippers and a corsage of white feathered carnations with gold accents.

Decorations throughout the home were predominantly gold and white. A gold Christmas tree on the piano in the living room was decorated with tiny birds and the mantel in the den where gifts were displayed held an arrangement of golden reindeer and white candles, nestled in greenery.

Are state police enforcing a Louisiana law prohibiting use of parking lights only on moving vehicles? State police at Troop F in Monroe say they have not been advised of any such law being passed in Louisiana.

Will there be any increase in veterans' pensions for 100 per cent disability due to a bill passed in the last session of Congress and, if so, how much?

A new law will raise pensions for totally disabled veterans, according to a sliding scale, says Veterans Administration. Persons with no dependents earning less than $600 a year will have their pensions increased from $85 to $100 monthly. In the $601-to-$1200 bracket, the increase is from $70 to $75; from $1201 to $1800 it is $40 to $43.

The bill does not affect compensation for veterans disabled in military service.

To what fraternal orders do J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, belong?

Hoover is a 33rd degree Mason, Shriner and active member, Grand Council, order of Demolay. He is also a member of Kappa Alpha, Omicron Delta Kappa, Delta Theta Phi, Alpha Phi Omega and Zeta Sigma Pi.

Is it customary in Monroe to give your paper boy a Christmas gift?

Our circulation department says that some persons here do — and that it is perfectly all right with the paper for them to do so.

Our face is red department?

Last week we answered a question asking if Billy Cannon and Jimmy Taylor ever played together in the LSU backfield. We asked our office "expert" who said no — and that's what we said. It has been called to our attention, however, from several sources — that in fact they did play together in 1957 when Taylor was a senior and Cannon a sophomore. We hereby offer our apologies and correct the record. Our expert is also dutifully sad over the error.

Are teachers paid nine months a year or all 12? Could 12 pay days instead of nine be considered a raise?

Pay procedure varies among the systems and is usually established in accord with the wishes of the majority.

Locally, both the Ouachita Parish and City of Monroe systems pay in 12 monthly checks.

Officials point out that teachers are paid only for the 180 days of a full school year, re-

Net Dishcloth Solves Many Tricky Problems

Dear Heloise: A quick way to make hamburger patties all the same size is to form them in inexpensive paper muffin liners. By putting a scoop in each liner, you will get patties all the same size. To shape them, just press them out with your hand. The muffin liner lies flat, and you will have a circular pattern. Patties like this store compactly, too. For freezing, just lay one on top of the other. The paper liner keeps them from sticking.

UPSET

DEAR ABBY: If you really loved him, you'd not only "let" him accept the appointment, you'd encourage him, knowing that he always wanted an Army career. Your chief concern seems to be the unhappy prospect of "sitting in the dorm for four years." A career man's wife needs more understanding than you appear to have. Level with him. Ask him to level with you. I think you could both probably do better in the choice of lifetime partners.

DEAR ABBY: I just found out that my girl friend kept a diary of our dates and she wrote a bunch of stuff in it that never happened. It was all out of her imagination. Her mother read it and now she refuses to let me date her. Abby, we never did anything wrong. What can I do?

The cause is not known but a virus is suspected. The disease is becoming more prevalent, even tho very contagious. When a college student has the infection, it is most unusual for his roommate to "catch" it from him. Freshmen and sophomores are more susceptible than juniors and seniors, suggesting that the older students have developed an immunity, probably from an attack so mild it was passed off as a slight cold.

The disorder begins, like most infections, with malaise and fever. The lymph glands in the neck, armpits, and groins enlarge. The nodes vary in size and are neither painful nor tender. Sore throat follows the feeling of weariness by several days and may be the most bothersome symptom. The spleen often doubles or triples in size and liver involvement may be severe enough to make the skin yellow (jaundiced). A blood test confirms the diagnosis.

Mrs. R. J. Clemens

Yes, I use this method when making only a few dishes of pudding or gelatin dessert. All I do, is remove the frozen mound of whipped cream, place it on top of the dessert and it thaws in a jiffy! Great for those dabs of left-over whipped cream.

Dear Heloise: When I use whipped cream, I always whip more than I expect to use at one meal.

What is left I put in small mounds on waxed paper or in a pan and place in the freezer until solidly frozen. They can then be put in a covered dish or plastic bag and used as needed.

Dear Heloise: Attractive and inexpensive Christmas bells can be made by covering paper cups with aluminum foil and hanging them on a pretty ribbon.

Insert a Christmas tree ornament hanger in the bottom of the cup and thread the ribbon through the loop.

DEAR ABBY

Interested To Know Her Present Address

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband died in 1951 and he left in excess of $700,000, and I was cheated out of every dime of it. None of the lawyers in this town will touch my case with a ten-foot pole. My husband had liver trouble. He was operated on for it, and his doctor told me himself that the operation was successful, but in nine days my husband was dead! I refused to pay the bill because that doctor had lied to me. When my husband's will was read I was cut out of it except for a few dollars I was supposed to live on. When I protested, they tried to prove that I was crazy. They are still trying to prove it. His sisters got everything. THEY are the crazy ones. Money crazy! Can you help me get out of here?

CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Where are you?

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with this boy for two years and we recently became engaged. He suddenly was notified that he has an opportunity to go to West Point. I knew he always wanted a military career, but I never thought he'd get an appointment to West Point. If he goes, it means we can't get married for four years. I plan to go to college, and the thought of sitting in the dorm for four years does not appeal to me. I love him, Abby, but I don't know whether to let him accept this appointment or not. I am 19 and he is 20. This is quite a shock to me as it wasn't in our plans. I would like some advice about what to do.

UPSET

DEAR ABBY: I just found out that my girl friend kept a diary of our dates and she wrote a bunch of stuff in it that never happened. It was all out of her imagination. Her mother read it and now she refuses to let me date her. Abby, we never did anything wrong. What can I do?

NOT GUILTY

DEAR NOT GUILTY: Proclaim your innocence and hope her mother belies you. And next time you become interested in a girl who goes in for creative writing, suggest she use an outlet other than her diary for her talents.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BERNICE: The biggest problem in the world could have been solved when it was small.

Problems? Write to ABBY, in care of News-Star. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Norman Lodge Dies Suddenly; Cause Unknown

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Norman Lodge, 67, a former director of the Veterans Administration information service and earlier a long-time Associated Press staff member, died Friday shortly after being feted at a VA retirement luncheon.

Lodge was VA information director from 1954 to 1958, was manager of the VA regional office in San Antonio, Tex., from 1958 to 1962, and since 1962 had been working at VA headquarters here.

He had retired from the VA effective Friday. After attending a luncheon given in his honor by patriotic organizations and fellow workers, Lodge returned to a hotel in which he was staying temporarily and died in his room. There was no immediate medical report as to the cause of death.

Mrs. Lodge left for San Antonio a few days ago, and they had planned to live there in his second retirement.

Dodd To Lead State Educators To Washington

BATON ROUGE (AP)—State Education Supt. William J. Dodd heads Louisiana educators who will be in Washington Monday to discuss with federal officials the state education system's future under the Civil Rights Act.

Dodd, in New Orleans, said in a telephone interview he urged the meeting to "seek clarification and information."

Some meetings were held several weeks ago, during which officials of the U. S. Health, Education and Welfare Department met with educators from throughout the nation.

Nothing has been made completely clear, Dodd said, "except the statement that the Civil Rights Act will be enforced."

"There's nothing definite enough for us to make plans around."

"They have informed us that Title 6 (of the Rights Act) is going to be enforced, and I'm going to take some of my staff to Washington, along with some other Louisiana school people, in an attempt to find out just exactly what they intend to do, and how they intend to do it."

Title 6 opens the way for federal agencies to cut off funds to segregated school systems, with presidential authorization.

LOW OF -30 REPORTED

At Least 25 Deaths Attributed To Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Millions of Americans went about their business in bitter, stinging cold Friday. On Western ranges livestock suffered heavily.

Subzero readings were recorded in 18 states stretching from Michigan and Missouri to northeastern Nevada and eastern sections of Oregon and Washington.

The lowest temperature reported in the nation was 30 degrees below zero at Hibbing, Minn. In Montana, where livestock took a hammering from the arctic cold, the lowest reported during the day was -10 at Missoula.

Cold wave warnings were posted in the middle and north Atlantic states. Central and southern Florida were the only sections of the nation not in the cold belt.

For some, the arctic air produced a cold humor; for others a blazing tragedy.

In Fountainview, Ind., 20 elderly persons died in a nursing home fire. In the 4-above-zero weather, firemen fought a water shortage by breaking ice in a nearby creek to fill pumper trucks.

Nine bodies were recovered before the wooden structure's roof collapsed, trapping the others.

Four maintenance employees of a convalescent home in Winfield, Ill., were killed when their cottage burned. The temperature was -6 when firemen arrived.

A Texas youth was killed when his car skidded on ice and overturned on a usually sun-baked road in the southwestern part of the state.

Two governors, John Love of Colorado and William Guy of North Dakota, were making statewide checks on local conditions.

Gov. Love already has asked disaster status for several counties, some suffering from snow so heavy the winter ranges are covered and cattle are starving.

Some 300 Montana cattlemen planned an airlift to save thousands of snowbound cattle, most of which haven't eaten in days.

The U. S. Air Force planned to supply four C119 Flying Boxcars to drop hay in isolated areas.

Many of the ranchers say they won't be able to count the loss in livestock until the spring thaw.

A 50 per cent casualty rate was expected in some herds.

The cold also caused some unusual situations.

While Seattle, Wash., zoo officials moaned about the high cost of feeding their animals, which had all moved indoors, Portland, Ore., zoo officials reported their normally tropical inmates were enjoying the weather.

A North Dakota Indian took his shoes off to warm his feet and found he couldn't get the shoes back on. He suffered "cold burns" when he walked four miles barefoot through a blizzard.

The Pacific Northwest felt some moderation in temperature as it prepared for a heavy snowfall.

Pittsburgh, which had a high of 45 Thursday recorded a low of 12 Friday with snow flurries and sleet making driving hazardous.

Farther east, precipitation has almost ended after a storm dumped more than a foot of snow just north of Syracuse, N.Y.

Freezing rain was still falling in north-central Texas, where hazardous driving warnings have been issued.

Flagstaff in north-central Arizona reported four inches of snow in a six-hour period.

Traffic Cases Are Processed In West Monroe

West Monroe's City Court docket was heavy Friday with traffic violations, and light on criminal cases.

PREDICTIONS UNTRUE

Businessmen View 1965 As Good Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for a group of business executives said Friday after a long conference with President Johnson that he and his colleagues do not regard 1965 as a "problem year" for the economy.

Frederick Kappel, chairman of the board of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., said some of the business executives expressed to the President more optimism than others, but the consensus was that this should not be a "problem year."

Kappel made the comment when told that there have been some predictions of a lull in the economy in midyear.

Kappel said he hopes Friday's session will be the beginning of continued dialogues between business and the White House.

He added that the business community by and large feels Johnson has been "extremely wise in his thoughtful evaluation of business and the economy."

Given the opportunity with a minimum of uncertainties and red tape, Kappel said, business can produce what is needed and provide necessary jobs for workers.

Kappel, who is chairman of the blue ribbon Business Council, once spoke of Johnson as "business-oriented," but when asked to elaborate he said that he thinks Johnson has done a good job in evaluating business and the economy.

The meeting with the business leaders followed by one day a general discussion with labor union chiefs.

Kappel said the discussion dealt mainly with the present state of the economy and the outlook for next year.

"We heard from him what his problems are, and we answered his questions," Kappel said.

Without going into detail, he said that each of the business leaders gave his own ideas on the economy, adding, "There were lots of ideas."

Also involved in the crash were cars driven by Gilbert S. Myers, 30, of Route 1, West Monroe, and Jack I. Cockerham, 36, of Route 5, West Monroe.

The accident occurred when the Cockerham vehicle went out of control on the icy portion of the bridge and was struck by the Dean car, which veered and was struck by the Myers car. Dean and Myers were charged with reckless driving.

Robert R. Thompson, 25, of 4409 Jackson St., Monroe, was also charged with reckless driving and causing an accident on the Louisville bridge at 7 a.m. Friday.

Officials ran out of the flaming Bank of Gonzales with money drawers and records Friday a blaze destroyed the 44-year-old building.

All 18 employees escaped without injury. Dr. Penrose St. Amant, president of the bank, said no money or valuables were lost.

St. Amant said the vault and safe deposit area were fireproof. After the blaze died down, he reported the vault was in "good shape."

The one-story frame and concrete block structure with some brick siding—also housed the East Ascension Parish branch library and some offices. They also were destroyed.

Lester Gonzales and Leon F. Geismar, members of the bank's board of directors and residents hauled out records, and money.

They were taken across the street to an insurance company office. Later, they will be moved to vaults.

The fire was believed to have started in the attic. Dr. St. Amant said he could not give an immediate estimate of the building's loss.

He said the bank will resume operation Saturday at another location.

Whip Candidates' Records

By Congressional Quarterly
WASHINGTON — When Senate Democrats meet early in January to elect their new whip, they will have a choice of three candidates with quite distinct voting records.

Sens. John O. Pastore (D R.I.), A. S. Mike Monroney (D Okla.) and Russell B. Long (D La.), all actively campaigning to succeed Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey in the number two Senate Democratic leadership slot, have differed on such issues as civil rights, medical care for the aged, the test ban treaty, foreign aid, housing, education, atomic energy development, oil depletion allowances, meat imports and feed grains legislation.

Of 37 selected key votes on which the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations took a stand over the last four years, Long, Monroney and Pastore took the same position on only 15. They all agreed with the President's position on 13 of these issues and disagreed on two.

SPECIAL REPORT

Pastore supported the President on 34 of the votes, opposed him on three. Monroney and the President took the same position on 28, disagreed on nine. Long supported the President on 18, opposed him on 19.

VOTING SCORES

However, in a study of all votes on which the President took a position Congressional Quarterly found that Monroney's support of the President surpassed that of Pastore in the 88th Congress. His score of 84 per cent support was followed by Pastore's record of 70 per cent and Long's 57 per cent.

In the 87th Congress, Pastore's Presidential support score was 80 per cent, Monroney's 70 per cent and Long's 57 per cent.

Of the 88th Congress votes on which a "conservative coalition" of Republicans and Southern Democrats joined forces against a majority of Northern Democrats — usually in opposition to the Administration — Long supported the coalition on 60 per cent of the votes, Monroney on 28 per cent and Pastore on 9 per cent. In the 87th Congress, their respective coalition support scores were 57, 44 and 12 per cent.

DIFFERING STANDS

On the crucial issue of civil rights, Pastore and Monroney this year supported the Administration position down the line, including the vote to invoke cloture against the Southern filibuster. Long was one of the Southerners filibustering the bill. In 1962, Monroney and Long had opposed a civil rights cloture move favored by the Administration and by Pastore.

Pastore supported the Administration's program for medical care under Social Security both in 1962 and 1964. Monroney opposed the bill in 1962 but reversed his position in 1964 and voted for it. Long has consistently opposed the program, but some observers predict that if he were elected whip, he would modify his opposition or even support the proposal.

Another key issue on which the three candidates divide is retention of the existing oil depletion allowance — a tax provision which is valuable to states with large oil industries. In 1964, Long and Monroney — both from oil rich states — voted twice against reducing the allowance; Pastore voted to reduce it. The President took no position.

Another 1964 issue which divided the candidates was imposition of meat import quotas. Long and Monroney supported the quotas; Pastore and the President opposed them.

In 1963, Long and Pastore voted for an Administration bill providing youth employment opportunities. Monroney opposed the bill, although in 1964 he voted for the anti-poverty bill which contained a similar program.

Also in 1963, Monroney and Pastore supported the President's proposal for establishment of a domestic peace corps. Long opposed it, but voted for the anti-poverty bill in 1964 which also included this program.

FOREIGN POLICY

Monroney and Pastore in 1963 supported the nuclear test ban treaty proposed by President Kennedy; Long opposed it.

In 1962, Monroney and Pastore, in agreement with the Administration, opposed barring foreign aid to Communist countries, supported the sale or donation of surplus food to Communist nations, voted for cloture on the filibuster (by Long and others) against the Administration's communications satellite bill, and backed an increase in foreign aid funds. Long in each case took the opposite stand.

In 1961, Monroney and Pastore supported the Administration's general school aid proposal and opposed a move to delete an Atomic Energy Commission plan to build a generator at its Hanford, Wash., plant. Long took the opposite position — also opposing the President.

Long and Pastore in 1961 voted against a Monroney proposal (opposed by the President) to change minimum wage standards to reduce coverage from 4 million additional workers to 2.5 million. Long and Pastore also voted for the final version of the Administration's 1961 housing bill. Monroney opposed the final bill, although he had supported the original bill passed by the Senate.

AREAS OF AGREEMENT

Despite these differences, there are also broad areas of agreement among the three whip candidates. In 1964, for instance, they all supported Johnson's position in favor of the tax cut, the anti-poverty program, urban mass transportation and the wheat-cotton bill, and against raising interest rates on foreign aid loans.

In the previous years of the Kennedy-Johnson Administration they had also supported the President on such issues as area redevelopment, railway labor arbitration, space program appropriations, public works, and Presidential tariff-cutting powers. All three opposed President Kennedy's 1962 proposal for withholding 20 per cent of dividend and credit income at its source.
